Mount Prospect State Bank now thirty-five years old

Mt. Prospect State Bank is thirty-five years old Saturday. It opened for business July 8, 1911. William Busse has been its president or chairman of the board the entire period. Across the street from the present bank structure is a small brick building. In a room 20 x 20 feet the bank was opened on that July day giving a banking institution to the young community — too young even to have a municipal government. Great hopes were held out for the future of the town and that bank. Those hopes have been realized. The bank which received $11,000 in deposits on its opening day and had assets at the end of the first year of less than $100,000, is today a three and a half million dollar institution. The town has become one of the finest residential communities northwest of Chicago and the bank has taken a major part in its development.

As the town grew, the bank grew. It had become a half million dollar institution prior to the depression. The policies of its officers enabled the institution to easily withstand the bank moratorium and the depression. With a return of good times the bank continued to grow. As it became the only bank for two adjoining communities much larger in size than Mt. Prospect, its influence expanded.

The business of the bank had made it a million dollar institution in 1939 and a two million dollar bank October, 1943 and in less than two years additional it had climbed to its present position.

Recognizing that the bank home should be in keeping with its importance the board of directors authorized a remodeling program last fall.

Marble has given the exterior of the building a metropolitan appearance, which has been further enhanced by a large and attractive electric sign. Thru heavy oak doors, entrance is gained to a lobby that is surprising in its arrangement, and a decided departure from the accepted bank grills and bullet proof glass.

In their place and across the lobby, thirty feet long is a walnut counter with numerous wickets, five of which are manned during busy periods. Space is there for business expansion. The safety deposits has its own department. At one corner is the desk of the bank president. Adjoining is the director's or conference quarters room, partly enclosed in glass which lends the needed privacy.

The customer does his business across the counter — no intervening bars. It now has a homey, neighborly, friendly atmosphere that customers enjoy. Those who have business with the president or any of the officers do not need any magic word to get into the sanctum sanctorium. Anybody can step up, say "howdy", shake hands, and pass the time of the day.

Delays in receipt of materials stopped the work many weeks and the changes became so gradual that the patrons gradually and almost unconciously became accustomed to the "new bank" they were entering.

The death of its president William Busse, Jr., cancelled all plans for an official grand opening, but the remodeled bank is a memorial to its late president who had a large part in the planning and was looking forward to its completion.

The bank force includes Carl W. Hammerl, executive vice president, William J. Busse, cashier; Clarence H. Schuldt, assistant cashier and auditor and the following employees: Bernice Kerschke, Myrtle Weigt, Marie Behrens, Vernette Goebbert, Phyllis Weith, Betty Ann Goebbert.

The officers and directors are William Busse, president; Henry W. Burmeister, vice-president; Fred Meeske, Fred W. Busse, Albert Wille, C. H. Gewecke, William Seegers, and Herman Kolpin, directors.

Two die in Palatine shooting

John A Richardson, a Palatine property owner and a resident for six months, died in the Bridewell hospital, Chicago, Thursday night, a few hours after he had shot and killed Edward Batterman, an innocent bystander and seriously wounded Mrs. Richard Sanford, wife of a Palatine tavern owner, in which the shooting occurred about 8:30 that morning. The tavern is located at Wilson and Bothwell sts., Palatine.

Police are waiting until Mrs. Sanford has recovered sufficiently to question her regarding the details of the shooting. She is in Sherman hospital, Elgin.

Four shots fired

Richardson fired four shots, one of them entered Batterman's heart after passing through his wrist. Two bullets hit Mrs. Sanford, one in the head and one in the stomach. Richardson then fired the fourth shot into his own head.

The coroner's office is in possession of a note found in the pocket of Richardson, addressed to Mr. Sanford in which he indicated that he intended to take the life of Mrs. Sanford.

Mrs. Sanford recovering

Mrs. Sanford has not recovered sufficiently to tell in detail what transpired prior to the shooting. Her husband has learned from his wife that she and Batterman entered the place together. A few minutes later Richardson arrived, requesting a sandwich and asked Batterman to go to the Schmidt market and buy some cheese.

Mrs. Sanford was in the kitchen preparing the sandwich and some coffee for the customer when she heard Richardson say to Batterman, "I am going to commit suicide and I might as well take you along with me." She screamed, ran into the tavern and the next instant was herself a victim.

Borrowed gun

The gun, an H. & R. target pistol, used by Richardson, had been loaned to him by a fellow train dispatcher, Wm. F. Fishenick, Northbrook, who told Chief Folz that Richardson had given the pretext of taking the gun with him on a fishing trip in northern Wisconsin. The weapon had been purchased in a Northbrook hardware store.

Mr. Richardson purchased the former Philip Matthei house, 230 N. Bothwell street six months ago. His wife is reported to have left his abode some time ago. Two children are reported at a northern camp.

There were no witnesses to the shooting. Mr. and Mrs. Sanford had retired late the previous evening and Mrs. Sanford had gone to the tavern to open it up. Batterman was acting as janitor. Mrs. Jack Greener heard the shooting, a woman screaming, and saw Batterman come staggering out the door. She ran into the store of Frank Sullivan, who called the local police.

Inquest into the death of Mr. Batterman was continued three weeks and that of Richardson to the same time, when the inquest will be reconvened at the criminal court building, Chicago.

Budget of $142,000 passed by Arlington Heights village board

Arlington Heights village board passed a budget of $142,000 Monday evening. Only a part of that budget will be reflected in the tax levy. The law requires that no expenditures be made for items not included in the yearly budget. Increased receipts will enable the village to make a number of needed purchases outside of funds received from taxes and the present budget includes these amounts.

Among them is $15,000 for the equipping of the new well. The village has the necessary funds in the water department. It is the same in other items. The total being appropriated is larger than any other year, but as Mayor Goedke explains it, "we are giving greater services to the public than ever before in the history of the village."

Water good for teeth

Arlington Heights children are going to have good teeth and not only because of the periodic examinations by the local health department. The State Water Survey has informed the village that the presence of Florine in wells No. 4 and 5 is in sufficient quantities to protect the teeth of those who drink the water. It is very beneficial to teeth growth and the Arlington Heights children of tomorrow are going to be in a position to "eat corn off the cob, until they are seventy," and Consoer, Townsend and associates in commenting on the water survey report.

Country Clubs are asking for the sludge in the beds of the treatment plant. "An easy and inexpensive way to get the beds cleaned," says Eldon Belcher, the plant engineer.

Police report 13 arrests, with fines of $79. Village Clerk Davis reported that business licenses totaling $120 had been purchased during June bringing the grand total to $3,160 for the year. Thirteen more dogs are wearing tags; total receipts $876.50 to date.

Paul Taege reported five building permits, the cost of which total $42,650. Payroll totaling $4,543.27 was approved for payment.

Accept well pump bid

Arlington Heights evidently got under the wire in reference to the costs of the new pump, building and machinery needed at well No. 5. J. P. Miller, Artesian Well Co., did not wait for the reaction of manufacturers and suppliers of building materials until the death of the OPA. That company quoted definite bids on the pump, installation and building. The total is $14,195. Mr. Fulkman of the office of Consoer, recommended that the bid be accepted, which was done by the board. The work is expected to be completed in 150 days, n there are no strikes.

New street signs

Arlington Heights village board members are casting longing eyes at a sample of new street signs that are on display at the treasurer's office. The suggested signs have 3 in: embossed letters in contrasting black and white. They would be easily read by passing motorists and would also give a million dollar look to the town, claim the manufacturer. "The signs are not bad", says Alderman Studtman, "but the price of $6.60 and installation is something else."

There is a loading jam on N. Evergreen. The cab stand takes three places on the east side of the street and Soft Water "no parking" takes part of the west side. Other stores are asking for relief. Their delivery trucks some times have to park a half-block away.

Excess dirt

There is excess dirt on certain streets in Arlington Ridge, but the dirt belongs to bonafide property owners, says Arthur Consoer, village engineer. His firm is ready to give its ok when they make proper application.

Traffic lights ok'd

Arlington's traffic signals on the Northwest Highway are now operating on a time schedule that has been ok'd by the state highway department. Complaints were due to a faulty motor, not the time schedule.

Rediscover WPA sewer

Just when everybody had forgotten about the achievements of the WPA of the depression days, a WPA sewer was rediscovered. Albert Schumacker needed a sewer from his property on Dwyer street. The sewer surveys showed none in existence, when Mayor Goedke remembered that the WPA had constructed a storm sewer ten years ago.

Eureka, the problem was solved for Mr. Schumacker.

The WPA did not permit the construction of sewers for sewage purposes, but storm water sewers were another story. Arlington has only one kind of sewer anyway, and Mr. Schumacker was given permission to hook on.

Urge owners to hold rent increases down to minimum

George L. Busse, president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, has recommended that owners hold rent increases down to a minimum. This recommendation is in line with similar action being taken by other realator boards and many property owners associations.

"I urge all owners of rental property," said Mr. Busse, to hold rent increases to an absolute minimum necessary to offset increased cost of operation and deferred maintenance with an overall limit of increase in any case between ten and fifteen percent over present levels."

Theodore H. Maenner, chairman of the Washington Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in a telegram to Mr. Busse, said in part: "Keep in mind that our amendments requested of congress sought increases of ten or fifteen percent over present levels."

1500 pay visit to Benjamin plant for dedication

More than 1500 friends and neighbors of the employees of Benjamin Electric Mfg. Company made an inspection tour of the new laboratory and of the plant last Thursday evening and Friday afternoon and evening. These plant tours followed the official dedication of the laboratory on Wednesday in the presence of the company's employees and of more than 60 business and community leaders from Des Plaines and neighboring communities.

In dedicating the laboratory to the advancement of the science and art of illumination, Hoyt P. Steele told the audience that the new building is a symbol of the company's faith in America and in the American way of life, and that the growth of the company in the 45 years of existence from a small beginning to its present size is a typical example of the opportunities which exist for small business industry even in the difficult periods through which we have passed and thru which we are now passing.

G. K. Hardacre, president-elect of the Illuminating Engineering Society and manager of commercial sales of Public Service Co. of Northern Illinois, told the employees that the company is one of the leading manufacturers of industrial lighting equipment in the world and that its products and its engineering recommendations are internationally accepted and used.

New Ford heads prize list at Wheeling Days

There is no longer any question as to whether the holder of the lucky ticket will be able to ride home from the 19th Annual Wheeling Day Celebration in a new 1946 Ford Super Deluxe. The car has been delivered and one big worry has been lifted from the shoulders of the committee on prizes.

Other big prizes to be given away at the close of the celebration on Sunday evening, July 21, are a combination radio and phonograph, electric washer and a floor lamp. The committee is also confident that the reputation which Wheeling holds for offering good prizes in all the games will be maintained this year.

Arlington Heights to have its own atom bomb

Factory district to have new outlet

Direct access to Arlington Hts. manufacturing district on East Davis street (Mayfair Foods, etc.) is provided in the appropriation passed by the village board Monday evening. It provides for the purchase of a lot at the end of George street, which will make possible the routing of all truck traffic to the industrial plans over that street.

This is good news for the people of Scarsdale, the streets of which are now being used.

Street and sidewalk grades will be furnished the Wheeling Machine Products Co., which anticipates some building on the property that company recently purchased on Hickory street.

Elmer Laurin gets phone message from Berne, Switzerland

When Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Laurin, Arlington Heights, received word from New York Sunday morning to standby for a phone call from Switzerland, they hardly left their phone. The call came at 2:00 p. m. Their son, Neil, was at the other end of the line. He is stationed at Munich where he and another GI are operating a PX. In other words, he is in the merchandising business, yet he does not have to worry about OPA prices.

From the sound of Neal's voice it is presumed that he was talking over the radio phone.

V. R. Wayman was granted permission Monday evening to use his own private atom bomb to wreck a chimney at the former Klehm Nursery greenhouse. The village police will be on hand to guard pedestrians and the atom-light bomb will not be dropped by plane. It was suggested at the board meeting by Alderman Kehe that if admission was charged from the explosion the receipts might be sufficient to pay for the dynamite.

Alderman Wm. Franke remembers that the last time it was tried a brick just missed his house, and he knows that two spokes of a child's bike were wrecked.

Mayor Goedke suggested that the explosion be made a part of the July 4th celebration about the hour in the morning when J. D. Flentie, thirty years ago, used to fire the anvil.

Late closing costs Palatine tavern owner liquor license

Acting on the report made by Police Chief Chas. Folz and his brother officers, Mayor Wm. H. DePue and the Palatine village board members decided Monday evening to revoke the tavern license held by Richard Sanford.

The police reported that the tavern had not closed on time and that they had difficulty in getting customers to leave when they made an investigation.

Trailers help out

The village of Arlington Hgts. is issuing trailer permits at $3.00 each for parking within the village. Evidence of sanitary conveniences are required by the police department before giving its approval. This year eight "race trackers" are taking advantage of the opportunity.

Many aspire to principalship of local high school

Elmer Laurin, president of Arlington Heights High School Board, reports that there are many aspirants for the principalship of Arlington Heights high school, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Egdorf. The board expects to make its selection within the next ten days.

Donkey baseball under lights next Thursday

Something new and unique will be presented for the entertainment of sports fans in Arlington Heights when the American Legion Jr. hard and soft ball teams play donkey baseball under lights.

This is the first time that this wholesome sport will be presented in this area under lights.

If you have seen donkey ball before you know it's an evening of fun.

Game time is 8:45 with proceeds going for the baseball fund of the American Legion.

Rev. Kossack returns to Crivitz pastorate

Rev. H. A. Kossack, after spending a short time in his old home town, Arlington Heights, is feeling very "chipper" and expects to resume his duties at Crivitz, Wis., by July 15. He says, "I always knew that Arlington Heights was a community of Good Neighbors, and the gift that was recently presented to me by a number of its citizens has further endeared me to Arlington where I spent so many happy years. I can only say thank you."

Property owners serve notice of opposition to Arlington airport

A. F. Wild, attorney for a number of property owners in the area of the navy auxiliary field at Arlington Heights, in an open letter addressed to Paddock Publications this week, voices opposition of his clients to the plans of the "young airport enthusiasts". The letter further announces their intention to ask the rezoning of the land in question. The letter follows:

To Paddock Publications:

It has come to our attention that there is a group of young enthusiasts in Arlington Heights who are eager to establish an airport in Elk Grove township, adjacent to the village. On behalf of property owners in Elk Grove and Palatine townships, as well as Wheeling township, having property of an assessed valuation of more than $2,000,000, I desire to advise that these owners are not in favor of the establishment of an airport on the navy site on Central rd. These property owners do neither recognize the necessity nor the desirability of such an airport and wish to go on record now that they will oppose such an undertaking.

At the time of the beginning of the emergency these property owners consented to rezoning of said area for the purpose of the establishment of an auxiliary airport for the navy. The emergency having passed, the property owners now contemplate the rezoning of said property.

Very truly yours,
A. F. Wild.

There were no witnesses to the shooting. Mr. and Mrs. Sanford had retired late the previous evening and Mrs. Sanford had gone to the tavern to open it up. Batterman was acting as janitor. Mrs. Jack Greener heard the shooting, a woman screaming, and saw Batterman come staggering out the door. She ran into the store of Frank Sullivan, who called the local police.

Inquest into the death of Mr. Batterman was continued three weeks and that of Richardson to the same time, when the inquest will be reconvened at the criminal court building, Chicago.

Budget of $142,000 passed by Arlington Heights village board

Arlington Heights village board passed a budget of $142,000 Monday evening. Only a part of that budget will be reflected in the tax levy. The law requires that no expenditures be made for items not included in the yearly budget. Increased receipts will enable the village to make a number of needed purchases outside of funds received from taxes and the present budget includes these amounts.

Among them is $15,000 for the equipping of the new well. The village has the necessary funds in the water department. It is the same in other items. The total being appropriated is larger than any other year, but as Mayor Goedke explains it, "we are giving greater services to the public than ever before in the history of the village."

Water good for teeth

Arlington Heights children are going to have good teeth and not only because of the periodic examinations by the local health department. The State Water Survey has informed the village that the presence of Florine in wells No. 4 and 5 is in sufficient quantities to protect the teeth of those who drink the water. It is very beneficial to teeth growth and the Arlington Heights children of tomorrow are going to be in a position to "eat corn off the cob, until they are seventy," and Consoer, Townsend and associates in commenting on the water survey report.

Country Clubs are asking for the sludge in the beds of the treatment plant. "An easy and inexpensive way to get the beds cleaned," says Eldon Belcher, the plant engineer.

Police report 13 arrests, with fines of $79. Village Clerk Davis reported that business licenses totaling $120 had been purchased during June bringing the grand total to $3,160 for the year. Thirteen more dogs are wearing tags; total receipts $876.50 to date.

Paul Taege reported five building permits, the cost of which total $42,650. Payroll totaling $4,543.27 was approved for payment.

Accept well pump bid

Arlington Heights evidently got under the wire in reference to the costs of the new pump, building and machinery needed at well No. 5. J. P. Miller, Artesian Well Co., did not wait for the reaction of manufacturers and suppliers of building materials until the death of the OPA. That company quoted definite bids on the pump, installation and building. The total is $14,195. Mr. Fulkman of the office of Consoer, recommended that the bid be accepted, which was done by the board. The work is expected to be completed in 150 days, if there are no strikes.

New street signs

Arlington Heights village board members are casting longing eyes at a sample of new street signs that are on display at the treasurer's office. The suggested signs have 3 in. embossed letters in contrasting black and white. They would be easily read by passing motorists and would also give a million dollar look to the town, claim the manufacturer. "The signs are not bad", says Alderman Studtman, "but the price of $6.60 and installation is something else."

There is a loading jam on N. Evergreen. The cab stand takes three places on the east side of the street and Soft Water "no parking" takes part of the west side. Other stores are asking for relief. Their delivery trucks some times have to park a half-block away.

Excess dirt

There is excess dirt on certain streets in Arlington Ridge, but the dirt belongs to bonafide property owners, says Arthur Consoer, village engineer. His firm is ready to give its ok when they make proper application.

Traffic lights ok'd

Arlington's traffic signals on the Northwest Highway are now operating on a time schedule that has been ok'd by the state highway department. Complaints were due to a faulty motor, not the time schedule.

Rediscover WPA sewer

Just when everybody had forgotten about the achievements of the WPA of the depression days, a WPA sewer was rediscovered. Albert Schumacker needed a sewer from his property on Dwyer street. The sewer surveys showed none in existence, when Mayor Goedke remembered that the WPA had constructed a storm sewer ten years ago.

Eureka, the problem was solved for Mr. Schumacker.

The WPA did not permit the construction of sewers for sewage purposes, but storm water sewers were another story. Arlington has only one kind of sewer anyway, and Mr. Schumacker was given permission to hook on.

Urge owners to hold rent increases down to minimum

George L. Busse, president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, has recommended that owners hold rent increases down to a minimum. This recommendation is in line with similar action being taken by other realator boards and many property owners associations.

"I urge all owners of rental property," said Mr. Busse, to hold rent increases to an absolute minimum necessary to offset increased cost of operation and deferred maintenance with an overall limit of increase in any case between ten and fifteen percent over present levels."

Theodore H. Maenner, chairman of the Washington Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in a telegram to Mr. Busse, said in part: "Keep in mind that our amendments requested of congress sought increases of ten or fifteen percent over present levels."

1500 pay visit to Benjamin plant for dedication

More than 1500 friends and neighbors of the employees of Benjamin Electric Mfg. Company made an inspection tour of the new laboratory and of the plant last Thursday evening and Friday afternoon and evening. These plant tours followed the official dedication of the laboratory on Wednesday in the presence of the company's employees and of more than 60 business and community leaders from Des Plaines and neighboring communities.

In dedicating the laboratory to the advancement of the science and art of illumination, Hoyt P. Steele told the audience that the new building is a symbol of the company's faith in America and in the American way of life, and that the growth of the company in the 45 years of existence from a small beginning to its present size is a typical example of the opportunities which exist for small business industry even in the difficult periods through which we have passed and thru which we are now passing.

G. K. Hardacre, president-elect of the Illuminating Engineering Society and manager of commercial sales of Public Service Co. of Northern Illinois, told the employees that the company is one of the leading manufacturers of industrial lighting equipment in the world and that its products and its engineering recommendations are internationally accepted and used.

New Ford heads prize list at Wheeling Days

There is no longer any question as to whether the holder of the lucky ticket will be able to ride home from the 19th Annual Wheeling Day Celebration in a new 1946 Ford Super Deluxe. The car has been delivered and one big worry has been lifted from the shoulders of the committee on prizes.

Other big prizes to be given away at the close of the celebration on Sunday evening, July 21, are a combination radio and phonograph, electric washer and a floor lamp. The committee is also confident that the reputation which Wheeling holds for offering good prizes in all the games will be maintained this year.

Arlington Heights to have its own atom bomb

Factory district to have new outlet

Direct access to Arlington Hts. manufacturing district on East Davis street (Mayfair Foods, etc.) is provided in the appropriation passed by the village board Monday evening. It provides for the purchase of a lot at the end of George street, which will make possible the routing of all truck traffic to the industrial plans over that street.

This is good news for the people of Scarsdale, the streets of which are now being used.

Street and sidewalk grades will be furnished the Wheeling Machine Products Co., which anticipates some building on the property that company recently purchased on Hickory street.

Elmer Laurin gets phone message from Berne, Switzerland

When Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Laurin, Arlington Heights, received word from New York Sunday morning to standby for a phone call from Switzerland, they hardly left their phone. The call came at 2:00 p. m. Their son, Neil, was at the other end of the line. He is stationed at Munich where he and another GI are operating a PX. In other words, he is in the merchandising business, yet he does not have to worry about OPA prices.

From the sound of Neal's voice it is presumed that he was talking over the radio phone.

V. R. Wayman was granted permission Monday evening to use his own private atom bomb to wreck a chimney at the former Klehm Nursery greenhouse. The village police will be on hand to guard pedestrians and the atom-light bomb will not be dropped by plane. It was suggested at the board meeting by Alderman Kehe that if admission was charged from the explosion the receipts might be sufficient to pay for the dynamite.

Alderman Wm. Franke remembers that the last time it was tried a brick just missed his house, and he knows that two spokes of a child's bike were wrecked.

Mayor Goedke suggested that the explosion be made a part of the July 4th celebration about the hour in the morning when J. D. Flentie, thirty years ago, used to fire the anvil.

Late closing costs Palatine tavern owner liquor license

Acting on the report made by Police Chief Chas. Folz and his brother officers, Mayor Wm. H. DePue and the Palatine village board members decided Monday evening to revoke the tavern license held by Richard Sanford.

The police reported that the tavern had not closed on time and that they had difficulty in getting customers to leave when they made an investigation.

Trailers help out

The village of Arlington Hgts. is issuing trailer permits at $3.00 each for parking within the village. Evidence of sanitary conveniences are required by the police department before giving its approval. This year eight "race trackers" are taking advantage of the opportunity.

Many aspire to principalship of local high school

Elmer Laurin, president of Arlington Heights High School Board, reports that there are many aspirants for the principalship of Arlington Heights high school, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Egdorf. The board expects to make its selection within the next ten days.

Donkey baseball under lights next Thursday

Something new and unique will be presented for the entertainment of sports fans in Arlington Heights when the American Legion Jr. hard and soft ball teams play donkey baseball under lights.

This is the first time that this wholesome sport will be presented in this area under lights.

If you have seen donkey ball before you know it's an evening of fun.

Game time is 8:45 with proceeds going for the baseball fund of the American Legion.

Rev. Kossack returns to Crivitz pastorate

Rev. H. A. Kossack, after spending a short time in his old home town, Arlington Heights, is feeling very "chipper" and expects to resume his duties at Crivitz, Wis., by July 15. He says, "I always knew that Arlington Heights was a community of Good Neighbors, and the gift that was recently presented to me by a number of its citizens has further endeared me to Arlington where I spent so many happy years. I can only say thank you."

Let a dentist check the children's teeth during vacation

by C. W. LUSSMAN
of Sieburg Pharmacy

Dentists are as hard pressed as most professional men these days. To give the careful attention to children's teeth that they deserve a dentist must have time, and this time is not available during school days.

Let vacation months be the time. Make your appointments early, before school closes, keep those appointments religiously. Extra appointments are often difficult to obtain.

Children's teeth are important. Extra care now, good teeth later.

The best dentifrices are stocked by a druggist who cooperates with the dentists.

Classmates honor bride-to-be with kitchen shower

Miss Harriet Bartholomew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bartholomew, Rand road, Arlington Heights, was the happy recipient of a bridal kitchen shower when twenty young ladies of the graduating class of '45 gathered at the home of Miss Beverlee Petersen, Wing st., Sunday evening.

Miss Bartholomew will become the bride of John Struth, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Struth, Dundee rd., Wheeling, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the Methodist church.

Shower gifts were ushered in by suitcases on which placards appeared and old shoes were tied with ribbon streamers. The bride-to-be opened her gifts under a blue ruffled organdy parasol, bedecked with daisies and satin ribbon.

The hostess entertained her guests by "telling fortunes" of each one present. Music and reminiscing of high school days was enjoyed.

A buffet supper was served at a table attractively decorated with the colors of the bridesmaids' gowns, pale pink and aquamarine. The centerprice was a large cake decorated with a pale pink umbrella and "Best Wishes, Harriet", flanked by tall candles, pink roses, and miniature pink and blue vases.

Miss Bartholomew and Miss Peterson have been close friends since first grade, and she is in the bridal party.

Mrs. Louis Bartholomew, her mother, Mrs. Wm. Struth, her fiance's mother, and Mrs. Alice Grose, her sister, were also present at the shower.

La Verne Orzech weds Ralph Koehler here

The "Happy Day" came for Miss LaVerne Orzech, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Orzech of Franklin Park and Mr. Ralph Koehler, son of Mrs. Adele Koehler of Melrose Park. The wedding was solemnized June 22 at 4 p.m. in Apostles Lutheran church near Franklin Park by the Rev. Wm Bartling.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a gown of Swiss embroidered satin, styled with long sleeves and sweetheart neck line with skirt and train of novelty lace. She wore a full length veil and carried a bouquet of white carnations centered by a corsage of red roses, from which fell streamers of white sweet pea.

The maid of honor, Miss Verna Koehler and the bridesmaids, Miss Eileen Orzech, Miss Anita Koehler and Miss Ruby Koehler, sister of the bride, and sister of the groom, wore white gowns of full net skirts topped with taffeta. Silver crosses, gifts of the bride, set off the sweetheart neck line of the gowns.

They also wore coronets of flowers to match their bouquets, the maid of honor carrying red carnations, the bridesmaids had pink carnations.

The groomsmen, attired in tuxedos and wearing boutonnieres to match the girl's flowers, were Mr. Nicholas Orzech Jr., as best man, and Mr. Armin Koehler, Mr. Raymond Ritt, and Mr. LeRoy Orzech, as ushers.

The groom, also in tux, had a white carnation boutonniere.

The bride's mother in a gown of yellow eyelet, and the groom's mother in a gown of white jersey with paisley print top, wore white carnation corsages. The groom's grandmother, Mrs. Louise Bicknese, was also present at the ceremony.

The wedding supper, for immediate relatives and close friends was served at Franzen's Hall, in Bensenville, with a reception of about 200 guests following.

The newlyweds left on a honeymoon to the Smoky Mountains and on their return will live in their new home in Bensenville.

Hardest Substances

A new and highly precise method of measuring hardness, developed by the National Bureau of Standards, gives these relative degrees of hardness to the four hardest substances: Diamond 6,500, boron carbide 2,300, carborundum 2,150 and sapphire 1,900.

Married

Mrs. William Taube, formerly Mercedes Militzer, daughter of Mrs. Mathilda Militzer of 1423 Lathrop ave., River Forest, was married on Saturday, June 15 at 7:30 p. m. at the River Forest Presbyterian church to Mr. William Taube, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Taube of Cicero. A reception immediately followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Taube is a graduate of Arlington Heights township high school.

Deaf girl wins crown as campus queen

Eileen Evans, daughter of Ruth Evans of South Plum Grove road, Palatine, spent a week's vacation at Conference Point camp, Williams Bay, Wisconsin, and came home as queen of the camp.

With about 175 high school girls attending the camp, Eileen received her crown as queen of northern state GAA camp at the final day's banquet. She was chosen for sportsmanship, leadership and ability.

Eileen is attending the Illinois school for the deaf at Jacksonville, and is in her last year. She'll be GAA president this fall.

Margaret Whelan and James Jensen marry

Now on a wedding trip by automobile to points in Canada are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Jensen, whose wedding was a colorful event Friday night.

The bride is the former Margaret Ann Whelan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Whelan, of 1065 E. San Jose st., Glendale, Calif., and her husband is the son of Mrs. Elsa Uhlich Jensen of 1011 E. Santa Anita ave., and Mr. James T. Jensen of Greenwood, Mo., formerly of Arlington Hgts.

The ceremony was read by the Rev. Mr. H. R. Shaffer in the Grandview Presbyterian Church in Glendale at 8 p. m. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

The pretty bride wore a long gown of ivory satin fashioned with a train, high neck and long sleeves and a peplum of imported lace. The Madonna finger-tip veil was trimmed with pearls and imported lace. She carried a white prayer book with a single white orchid and streamers of ribbon and flowers.

Miss Evelyn Whelan, the bride's sister, was maid of honor and Elnor Frisbie was bride's maid.

Miss Whelan wore pale blue taffeta with high neck and matching mitts and a halo cap. She carried a shower bouquet of blue delphiniums, pink sweet peas and roses.

Miss Frisbie wore yellow taffeta fashioned in a similar style. Her bouquet was of blue dephinium, lavendar sweet peas and butterfly roses.

Robert Jensen, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Everett Nicklaus and John Dyer.

Glenn P. Frisbie, baritone, sang "O Promise Me," and "Because".

Mrs. Whelan chose for her daughter's wedding an aqua blue crepe frock worn with a corsage of peach colored gladiolas and the groom's mother wore a rose jersey with a corsage of blue delphinium and pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. On the return from the honeymoon the new home will be established at 1011 E. Santa Anita ave, Glendale.

The new Mrs. Jensen is a graduate of the Berkley high school and of the University of California at Berkeley. Her husband studied at Purdue University, Ind., and was graduated from Parks Air College in St. Louis. He is now employed as a manufacturing engineer at Lockheed.

C. H. Mills 'dig up' ancestors on eastern trip

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mills returned from a three week's trip in the east visiting friends, relatives, and "ancestors" in Michigan, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

An interesting part of their trip was investigating a little of the history of both sides of the family. At Washington county, Pa., the Mills hunted down some of the Parkinsons, from Mrs. Mills' side, and at Valley Forge, relatives of Mr. Mills.

One ancestor had owned the building in which Washington made his headquarters during the historic days of the Revolution. It is now a national shrine. Another had owned the first stove of Ben Franklin's at Coventry. Another historical place visited was Pottstown, Pa.

The Mills also called upon the O. G. Barretts at Morenci, Mich., formerly of Arlington Heights. They visited their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Childs at Ann Arbor, Mich. Mr. Childs is attending graduate law school there.

Future Homes 4-H

Our 4-H Club had their 5th meeting June 24 at the home of Irene Rodewald. Most of the girls have their packages ready to send to some children in the foreign countries.

After listening to the radio programs we wanted to visit, we decided that they weren't very good and that we would go on a daytime cruise to Michigan then eat our lunch and visit an amusement park while we were there. Lois Jacobson and Shirley Heimsoth are going to represent our club at the 4-H camp in Rockford, Ill.

We all gave a demonstration on posture and judge each other while demonstrating. Lois Scharringhausen and Irene Rodewald gave a demonstration in using tomatoes Norma Geistch gave a demonstration on how to mix different vegetables. Constance Johnson gave a demonstration of how how to make a tossed salad.

Refreshments were served after the meeting. The next meeting will be held at the home of Lois Jacobson.

Irene Scharringhausen.

Elk Grove 4-H news

June meeting of the Elk Grove 4-H club was held Friday at the home of Arthur Kulman, Route 83. Plans were made for an outing at Lake Wauconda during July. A demonstration on hog raising was given by Arthur Kulman, Raymond Kasdorf, Donald Linneman and Edwin Linneman.

"How to milk goats", was demonstrated by Raymond Kasdorf at the May meeting held at his home on Algonquin road.

Erwin J. Mattes family depart for California

A surprise farewell luncheon was given Mrs. Erwin J. Mattes when twelve of her friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Arthur Peterson, June 20. After a delicious lunch, the afternoon was spent playing cards. Mrs. Mattes was presented with a two year subscription to the Arlington Heights Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. Mattes have sold their home at 409 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights, and have moved to Los Angeles, Calif., where they have purchased a home in a suburb. Their many friends will miss them and their five children, Erwin, Jr., who attended high school, Donald, Joseph and Judith, of St. James school, and James, 2 years old.

The Mattes are making a vacation tour of their trip west, visiting the Black Hills, Yellowstone Park, and other scenic spots. They are "roughing it", camping in the out doors, cooking over an open fire, sleeping under the stars or in a tent in bad weather, all experiences that they will long remember.

Woman's club federation in 55th annual meeting

By HELEN C. GSCHWINDT
President, Woman's Club of Palatine

In the belief that there are many members of the Woman's Clubs among the readers of Paddock Publications, Mrs. Helen Gschwindt, president of the Palatine Club, has consented to give for publication her report of the general federation meeting recently held in Chicago. It was the first time in thirty years that Chicago has had the honor of entertaining the national convention. Mrs. Gschwindt was hostess to the speakers. She found it "an enriching experience." Mrs. Gschwindt's report follows:

The convention opened with an Illinois dinner in the grand ball room of the Stevens hotel. Fourteen hundred people were present. Mrs. Theodore Chapman, president of the Illinois Federation of Woman's Clubs, greeted the delegates with a fine address. She said, "We of Illinois have hitched our wagon to a star, and we will push ahead with star dust in our hair." She greeted the guests and a response was given by Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, president of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs. Major Geo. Campbell presented "Keep America Singing" and before he finished he had every one singing and in a most happy mood.

Mrs. Chapman introduced the honorable Dwight H. Greene, and may I say here that I was proud of our governor as he gave a splendid speech. He spoke of the fine things the Illinois club women are doing and of the many things they have accomplished. He finished by saying "we do not need government as much as we need more spiritual life."

MAYOR WELCOMES

The honorable Edward J. Kelly welcomed all the delegates to Chicago. A very fine program followed, Countess Marie Pulaski, Polish refugee, who told of the many horrible conditions in the underground during the war. To finish the dinner, fine music was given by "The Northerners". The evening closed with a reception given for Mrs. Dickinson.

The Tuesday morning session opened at 9 a.m. with The Lord's Prayer, sung by Thomas Burdick, followed by The Pledge of Allegiance. There was a program broadcast by the General Mills Co., of hymns of all churches and may I say here that it made me very happy to see that all during the convention, music and religion was very predominate.

The key note speaker of the morning was Capt. Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota. He spoke of pre-war conditions and could we permit a third war. "Our greatest need" he said, "was for production, and our greatest concern also the stoppage of production. Winning the war is not a guarantee to peace, neither was the acceptance of the Charter." He continued, "don't give up the peace — no matter what problems confront us — we must live peace and think peace constantly".

Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, president of General Federation, then addressed the delegates. She spoke of youth conservation, American homes, health institutes. She said "Theodore Roosevelt once said 'that the best prize life offers is the chance to work hard at work worth doing. It is no exaggeration to say that the last hope of civilization rests with the United Nations." She continued, "the great concern of our General Federation at this time should be to help to establish a free world founded on consultation, cooperation, kindliness and tolerance. We must help establish this peace. She quoted George Bernard Shaws "I see no way out of the world's misery except the way that Christ would take if he should undertake the work of modern statesmen". She concluded with a thought for Alice Freeman Palmer. "She had the courage of her enthusiasm — let that be true of us in the years ahead."

Tuesday afternoon

Mrs. Jos. F. Robinson, Director of Women's Section of U. S. Savings Bonds Division, spoke on "What will you save for Peace". It was a fine message and stressed the point of continuing to buy war bonds.

The three key speakers of the afternoon session were Dr. Harold C. Wrey, of the University of Chicago; Major General Leslie R. Groves ,commanding General Manhattan Engineer District and the Honorable Brien McMahon, U. S. Senator from Connecticut. The topic was "Science Tomorrow".

Dr. Wrey was, I thought, outstanding and his information on the atomic bomb was almost beyond description. Major Groves said, "upon our actions depends the fate of the world". "America", he said "holds the fate of the world in its hands."

Tuesday night was the junior dinner and the speaker for the evening was the Honorable Fiorello La Guardia, director general of U.N.R.R.A. His subject was "Feeding the 500,000,000." I have never heard such sincerity in any speaker as he gave to his audience. It was filled with humor and pathos. His plea, for food conservation and his deeply religious attitude was beautiful. He said, "we need more religion in the world and asked, may we all go out and live the spiritual life of Jesus as well as talk about it." He closed by saying, "stand where you can be seen, speak so you can be heard, and sit down to be liked." His applause lasted for several minutes.

Wednesday, the entire morning was given to reports, revisions, and resolutions. There was a Labor Management Forum. Speakers were Mr. James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O. for labor; Mr. H. W. Prentis, Jr. president, Armstrong Cork Co., on management and Mrs. Raymond Sayre, vice president, Ass. Women Farm Bureau Federation, on The Public.

HEALTH FORUM

Afternoon session had a National Health Forum. Dr. Channing Frothingham, Dr. Morriss Fishbein and Mr. Leonard Edelstein, executive secretary of the National Mental Health program. Each speaker had a splendid message, but I felt that Mr. Edelstein had the most interesting and tragic subject, dealing with some of our young insane, who have been put into institutions and how they are gradually helping them to come back.

Wednesday night was Junior Club Women Night. Reports were given by all Jr. State presidents. The speaker for the evening was a very charming artist, Miss Ann Moray, who told of her experiences on seas during the last war as an entertainer and sang the songs the boys requested. Her program was lovely and there was scarcely a dry eye in the audience when she finished. The evening ended with motion pictures and the presentation of David S. Meyer Memorial Award to Metro Goldwyn Mayer.

The key speaker Thursday morning was Honorable Emily Taft Douglas, member of Congress from Illinois. She spoke on "Timely Legislation". The afternoon was free for all delegates to see Chicago loop. I enjoyed hearing with about fifty others a broadcast from WMAQ of "Today's Children and Guiding Light".

RESOLUTIONS

Friday morning was taken up mostly by the revisions and resolutions. The speaker was Fannie Hurst, who flew from New York. Her subject was "Politics and the Sleeping Beauty". She spoke with such ease and assurance and said "there must be unification of women with men, to allow women to stand up with men and carry on in politics." Friday afternoon was devoted to department and committee conference. At 4:15 the entire delegation were invited to be guests at the Art Institute.

Friday night was the banquet and the feature of the evening was a United Nations Forum as follows:

China — His Excellency Dr. Wei Jao Ming, ambassador.

France — His Excellency, Henri Bonnet, ambassador.

Great Britain—The right Honorable Lord Inverchapel, ambassador.

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Miss Antoning Kolstorg.

It was all very interesting and at the same time amusing to hear the views and objections of each speaker.

Welcome club annual picnic

The Welcome Club of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, held its annual picnic on the lawn of the Old Folk's Home. The weather was perfect and the pot luck luncheon, consisting of a variety of food, was heartily enjoyed by everyone present.

After the luncheon Mrs. Agnes Kolling, president of the club, conducted the regular meeting. As this was the end of the fiscal year, an annual report was given by the secretary and the treasurer showing the work accomplished and business transacted during the year.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. J. Kempf, resident manager of the Old Folks Home, conducted the members on a tour through the home. This tour gave everyone a better knowledge as to the efforts that have been made to modernize and improve the Home and to provide better care and more pleasant surroundings for the aged.

Following the tour the members enjoyed ice cream and cookies and played games. A treat of ice cream and cookies was also provided by the Welcome Club for residents of the Old Folks Home.

Janet Long and Earl Gubbins exchange vows

The First Methodist church in Glenview was the setting for the wedding of Miss Janel Long, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer J. Long of Central Road, East Maine, to Mr. Earl Gubbins, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gubbins, Sr., of Golf Road, East Maine. The double ring ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Robert E. Tinker. Mr. R. Hampton presided at the organ.

Janet was escorted to the altar by her father who gave her hand in marriage. She chose all white for her wedding color, the attendants' flowers being the only touch of color in the lovely scene. The men in the party wore summer formals of white coats and dark trousers.

The bride's gown was of gleaming white satin, made with long sleeves, the skirt falling into a graceful train. Her veil of fingertip length had a short blusher and was caught to her head with a wreath of flowers. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift from the groom. Her bouquet was of large white gladiolus and gypsophilia.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Myrtle Sellers, was matron of honor, and Miss Katherine Beck, cousin of the groom, and Miss Lillis Darrow, chum of the bride, were bridesmaids. Their gowns were alike, of white bengaline with long, full skirts. They wore fingerless gloves of elbow length and each wore a string of pearls, a gift from the bride. Myrtle's flowers were salmon colored glads tied with matching ribbon, Katherine's were light salmon with a yellow ribbon and Lillis' bouquet was of a very pale shade of orchid and tied with an orchid ribbon.

The groom was attended by Louis Schlosser as best man, and Robert Long and George Tuttle as groomsmen. Robert served as standin for his brother, Glenn, who was unable to reach home in time for the wedding.

The mothers of the bridal couple also wore white. Mrs. Long's gown was of white eyelet embroidery and Mrs. Gubbins' of white sharkskin. Both wore corsages of glads. Both grandmothers of the groom were able to attend the wedding.

A reception attended by 250 guests was held at the Roosevelt Park Field House in Glenview. A buffet supper was served at midnight, the large wedding cake gracing the center of the table.

The newlyweds are enjoying a two weeks vacation in Wisconsin. They will make their home with the groom's parents.

C. H. Mills 'dig up' ancestors on eastern trip

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mills returned from a three week's trip in the east visiting friends, relatives, and "ancestors" in Michigan, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

An interesting part of their trip was investigating a little of the history of both sides of the family. At Washington county, Pa., the Mills hunted down some of the Parkinsons, from Mrs. Mills' side, and at Valley Forge, relatives of Mr. Mills.

One ancestor had owned the building in which Washington made his headquarters during the historic days of the Revolution. It is now a national shrine. Another had owned the first stove of Ben Franklin's at Coventry. Another historical place visited was Pottstown, Pa.

The Mills also called upon the O. G. Barretts at Morenci, Mich., formerly of Arlington Heights. They visited their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Childs at Ann Arbor, Mich. Mr. Childs is attending graduate law school there.

Future Homes 4-H

Our 4-H Club had their 5th meeting June 24 at the home of Irene Rodewald. Most of the girls have their packages ready to send to some children in the foreign countries.

After listening to the radio programs we wanted to visit, we decided that they weren't very good and that we would go on a daytime cruise to Michigan then eat our lunch and visit an amusement park while we were there. Lois Jacobson and Shirley Heimsoth are going to represent our club at the 4-H camp in Rockford, Ill.

We all gave a demonstration on posture and judge each other while demonstrating. Lois Scharringhausen and Irene Rodewald gave a demonstration in using tomatoes Norma Geistch gave a demonstration on how to mix different vegetables. Constance Johnson gave a demonstration of how how to make a tossed salad.

Refreshments were served after the meeting. The next meeting will be held at the home of Lois Jacobson.

Erwin J. Mattes family depart for California

A surprise farewell luncheon was given Mrs. Erwin J. Mattes when twelve of her friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Arthur Peterson, June 20. After a delicious lunch, the afternoon was spent playing cards. Mrs. Mattes was presented with a two year subscription to the Arlington Heights Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. Mattes have sold their home at 409 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights, and have moved to Los Angeles, Calif., where they have purchased a home in a suburb. Their many friends will miss them and their five children, Erwin, Jr., who attended high school, Donald, Joseph and Judith, of St. James school, and James, 2 years old.

The Mattes are making a vacation tour of their trip west, visiting the Black Hills, Yellowstone Park, and other scenic spots. They are "roughing it", camping in the out doors, cooking over an open fire, sleeping under the stars or in a tent in bad weather, all experiences that they will long remember.

Woman's club federation in 55th annual meeting

By HELEN C. GSCHWINDT
President, Woman's Club of Palatine

In the belief that there are many members of the Woman's Clubs among the readers of Paddock Publications, Mrs. Helen Gschwindt, president of the Palatine Club, has consented to give for publication her report of the general federation meeting recently held in Chicago. It was the first time in thirty years that Chicago has had the honor of entertaining the national convention. Mrs. Gschwindt was hostess to the speakers. She found it "an enriching experience." Mrs. Gschwindt's report follows:

The convention opened with an Illinois dinner in the grand ball room of the Stevens hotel. Fourteen hundred people were present. Mrs. Theodore Chapman, president of the Illinois Federation of Woman's Clubs, greeted the delegates with a fine address. She said, "We of Illinois have hitched our wagon to a star, and we will push ahead with star dust in our hair." She greeted the guests and a response was given by Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, president of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs. Major Geo. Campbell presented "Keep America Singing" and before he finished he had every one singing and in a most happy mood.

Mrs. Chapman introduced the honorable Dwight H. Greene, and may I say here that I was proud of our governor as he gave a splendid speech. He spoke of the fine things the Illinois club women are doing and of the many things they have accomplished. He finished by saying "we do not need government as much as we need more spiritual life."

MAYOR WELCOMES

The honorable Edward J. Kelly welcomed all the delegates to Chicago. A very fine program followed, Countess Marie Pulaski, Polish refugee, who told of the many horrible conditions in the underground during the war. To finish the dinner, fine music was given by "The Northerners". The evening closed with a reception given for Mrs. Dickinson.

The Tuesday morning session opened at 9 a.m. with The Lord's Prayer, sung by Thomas Burdick, followed by The Pledge of Allegiance. There was a program broadcast by the General Mills Co., of hymns of all churches and may I say here that it made me very happy to see that all during the convention, music and religion was very predominate.

The key note speaker of the morning was Capt. Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota. He spoke of pre-war conditions and could we permit a third war. "Our greatest need" he said, "was for production, and our greatest concern also the stoppage of production. Winning the war is not a guarantee to peace, neither was the acceptance of the Charter." He continued, "don't give up the peace — no matter what problems confront us — we must live peace and think peace constantly".

Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, president of General Federation, then addressed the delegates. She spoke of youth conservation, American homes, health institutes. She said "Theodore Roosevelt once said 'that the best prize life offers is the chance to work hard at work worth doing. It is no exaggeration to say that the last hope of civilization rests with the United Nations." She continued, "the great concern of our General Federation at this time should be to help to establish a free world founded on consultation, cooperation, kindliness and tolerance. We must help establish this peace. She quoted George Bernard Shaws "I see no way out of the world's misery except the way that Christ would take if he should undertake the work of modern statesmen". She concluded with a thought for Alice Freeman Palmer. "She had the courage of her enthusiasm — let that be true of us in the years ahead."

Tuesday afternoon

Mrs. Jos. F. Robinson, Director of Women's Section of U. S. Savings Bonds Division, spoke on "What will you save for Peace". It was a fine message and stressed the point of continuing to buy war bonds.

The three key speakers of the afternoon session were Dr. Harold C. Wrey, of the University of Chicago; Major General Leslie R. Groves ,commanding General Manhattan Engineer District and the Honorable Brien McMahon, U. S. Senator from Connecticut. The topic was "Science Tomorrow".

Dr. Wrey was, I thought, outstanding and his information on the atomic bomb was almost beyond description. Major Groves said, "upon our actions depends the fate of the world". "America", he said "holds the fate of the world in its hands."

Tuesday night was the junior dinner and the speaker for the evening was the Honorable Fiorello La Guardia, director general of U.N.R.R.A. His subject was "Feeding the 500,000,000." I have never heard such sincerity in any speaker as he gave to his audience. It was filled with humor and pathos. His plea, for food conservation and his deeply religious attitude was beautiful. He said, "we need more religion in the world and asked, may we all go out and live the spiritual life of Jesus as well as talk about it." He closed by saying, "stand where you can be seen, speak so you can be heard, and sit down to be liked." His applause lasted for several minutes.

Wednesday, the entire morning was given to reports, revisions, and resolutions. There was a Labor Management Forum. Speakers were Mr. James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O. for labor; Mr. H. W. Prentis, Jr. president, Armstrong Cork Co., on management and Mrs. Raymond Sayre, vice president, Ass. Women Farm Bureau Federation, on The Public.

Army dead, missing for U.S. is 308,978; 2.98 per cent

The first consolidated listing of Army dead and missing in World War II —a compilation of the names of nearly 310,000 men and women who gave their lives in the Nation's service—was released today by the War Department.

The list was made up of fifty booklets, one for each state, one for the District of Columbia, and one for the Territories and Possessions of the United States. Each booklet contained a forward explanatory of the methods of listing, a breakdown by counties and types of casualty, and an alphabetical listing by county of the name, serial number and grade of each individual and manner in which he met his death. The Philippine Commonwealth was not included in the study.

An overall death and missing rate of 2.98 per cent from all causes was indicated by the listing. Of more than 10,000,000 men and women mobilized into the Army between the Presidential declaration of unlimited national emergency on May 27, 1941, and the concluding date of the study, January 31, 1946, a total of 307,554 had been killed in action, died of other causes or became missing, later to be determined dead. In addition, 1,424 persons were still carried as missing on January 31, 1946, bringing the total number of names in the list to 308,978.

Of the total, 57.1 per cent, numbering 176,432, were listed as killed in action. Other casualty breakdowns showed that 25,493 (8.25 per cent) died of wounds suffered in combat; 929 (0.3 per cent) died of combat injuries; 85,219 (27.6 per cent) died other than in battle, and 19,481 (6.3 per cent) were adminstratively determined to have died. The missing figure of 1,424 represented 0.45 per cent of the total.

Most of the persons who were determined to have died were carried for periods of at least one year in a missing status, and were declared dead under Public Law 490, 77th Congress, after thorough investigation of each case.

In the foreword to the booklets, it was pointed out that the War Department is extremely reluctant to hold out hope to next of kin that any missing persons will be found alive. It is expected that after a reasonable lapse of time and after due investigation, most of these missing cases will be closed with findings of death.

The "death rate" in various states (which also includes missing) followed closely the proportions of their contributions to Army strength, although some dislocations were noted, especially in the case of New Mexico, which early in the war suffered heavy casualties in a National Guard unit in the Philippines. New Mexico, with four-tenths of one per cent of the nation's population, contributed .43 of one per cent of the Army's strength, and suffered .66 of one per cent of the Army's total deaths. The state's death rate in the Army was 4.77 per cent, as compared to the national average of 2.98 per cent.

The highest death rate was 5.05 per cent for the District of Columbia, but this figure included numerous Regular Army personnel who gave their home address as The Adjutant General, Washington, although they did not actually live in the nation's capital. Other high death rates were noted in Montana, with 4.53 per cent: North Dakota, 4.14 per cent, and Arizona, 4.01 per ment. The lowest death rate was in the case of the Territories, which lost only 1.18 per cent of their strength. Among the states, Maryland, with 2.20 per cent, had the lowest rate. Other states with low death ratios were Mississippi, 2.32 per cent; Louisiana, 2.36 per cent; Alabama, 2.54 per cent, and Florida, 2.63 per cent.

New York State, with the largest population and the largest contribution to the Army's strength, lost 31,215 persons, the greatest number of any state. Other high death totals were found in the more populous states: Pennsylvania, 26,554; Illinois, 18,601; California, 17,022; Ohio, 16,827; and Texas, 15,764. The least populous states generally had the smallest number of deaths: Nevada, 349; Delaware, 579; Wyoming, 652, and Vermont, 874.

The operation of the Selective Service System, which drew proportionately from all walks of life and all sections of the country, was noticeable throughout the report. An evidence of the democratic working of the draft was the fact that only three of the smallest of the nation's three thousand counties failed to suffer a casualty. These counties were King, in Texas; Esmeralda, in Nevada, and Yellowstone National Park, in Wyoming. The greatest losses among counties were in the most thickly populated areas: Cook (Chicago) Illinois, 9,723; Los Angeles, California, 6,674; Kings (Brooklyn) New York, 5,341. New York City, which is made up of the five borough - counties of Bronx, Kings, New York (Manhattan), Queens and Richmond (Staten Island), suffered 16,112 deaths. Other city totals were not available except in such cases as San Francisco (1,365), Philadelphia (4,393), Baltimore (2,031) and St. Louis (1,636), where city and county are coextensive.

In releasing the booklets, the War Department pointed out that the listing was a preliminary one, and might because of its scope contain errors which would be corrected when determined. In addition to possibility of error in preparation, it was emphasized that misinformation often is given unintentionally by an individual when he enters the service (such as a mistaken identification of his home county) and other inaccuracies are from time to time apt to be introduced into the individual's records.

Distribution of the limited supply of booklets was made to the press, the Congress, State Adjutants General and local Selective Service Boards. This distribution exhausted the supply of booklets, the War Department announced. A revised and final list is expected to be published at a future date.

Army dead from Illinois show 10,921 killed in action, 1,568 died of wounds, 57 died of injuries, 4,830 died (non-battle), 1,151 finding of death under law, and 74 still missing.

Illinois with 5.88% of the population contributed 6.14% of army strength, 3.04% of whom didn't return, representing 6.07% of the army's dead and missing.

Du Page county shows 112 army dead and missing.

Because the supply of books is limited, Paddock Publications are opening their copy to public scrutiny. It may be seen in the publication office, but cannot be removed from the building.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Louis H. Wahl, who passed away one year ago, July 7, 1945.

He bid no one a last farewell
He said goodbye to none;
His loving heart had ceased to beat,
Before we knew it, he was gone.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and true in his heart and mind,
A beautiful memory he left behind.
He had a nature you could not help loving,
A heart that was purer than gold.
And those who knew him and loved him,
His memory will never grow cold.
And when evening shadows are falling,
And we are sitting all alone,
To us there comes alonging,
If you only could come home.
Oft and oft our thoughts do wander,
To a grave not far away,
Where we layed our husband and father,
Just one year ago today.

Sadly missed by wife Amanda, daughter Ethel, sons Arthur and Louis Wahl.

Vacation school to open July 8

The Prospect Heights Summer Vacation School will open its doors for its third season Monday morning July 8. All children 4 years of age and older have been cordially invited to attend by Pastor Robert F. Klepper.

Classes will convene at the Community church daily, Monday through Friday, at 9:30 a.m. and close at 12:00 noon. The school will be in session two weeks, July 8 to 19 inclusive and a registered attendance of 125 is anticipated.

Music, Bible stories, handicraft and recreation will be the principal subjects covered during the school term.

Mrs. Robert F. Klepper, Mrs. Grover Jungbluth and Mrs. Homer C. Torreyson will serve as leaders in the music study features; Mrs Howard Spenks and Mrs. William Lucke will have charge of recreation facilities; Pastor Klepper, Mrs. Edward F. Tollefson and Mrs. R. F. Klepper will serve as teachers and story tellers in connection with Bible work; with Mrs John G. Spillar, Mrs. Homer E. Sylvester, Mrs. Arthur F. Brownell, Mrs. Kurt M. Krebs, Mrs. Fritz Weidig, Mrs. Theodore Lind, Mrs John G. Hane, and Mrs. Roy Goetschel serving as instructors in the handicraft division.

The vacation school program for the past two years has proved highly successful. It has been thoroughly enjoyed by the children and has served as a midsummer reunion of school activities. Folk songs, sewing for girls, clay and airplane modeling for boys, games and interestingly told Bible stories have a particular appeal to children. This year's program includes all of these successful features.

The handicraft leaders together with Mrs. Ralph Olsen, and Mrs. George H. Sheppard have planned a unique and interesting program for this year's session.

South church youth to go to Lake Geneva

About thirty young people of high school age from the South Church, Mt. Prospect, are to leave for the annual Chicago Baptist Youth Assembly at Conference Point Camp on Lake Geneva this coming Sunday morning. The group will leave by train at 9:26 in the morning. They return the following Sunday.

The Youth Assembly holds its sessions on the beautiful grounds of the Conference Point Camp where the young folks are housed and class and recreational activities are carried on. Each young person takes two or three classes studying the bible, church music, youth programs, drama or recreational methods. Periods are provided for group games, swimming, movies and group religious services.

This year the pastor of the South Church is included on the faculty of the assembly and will be teaching a course in methods for youth work in the local church.

Kelly's Kolumn

You'll see members of the Woman's Club behind stacks of hot dogs and pots of coffee at the refreshment booth. They're having fun in the short order business, but say they wouldn't care to make a career out of it. Who said the war was over? The "little women" have even drafted some of their unfortunate husbands for compulsory service in the refreshment stand.

Heavy gamblers gather round the American Legion bingo booth, receive a card and a handful of corn and are all set for a high evening.

Biggest attraction this year isn't a new ride but the gas filled lollipop-colored balloons. If you see a red dot on the sky don't get excited — it isn't a sun spot — some one just let go. One ingenious individual attached six balloons to a kite string. More fun than a kite when you let out the string — all five miles of it — and decidedly much less work.

I understand Mr. Bob Beatty, chairman of the park board, deserves a heap of credit for organizing the 4th of July celebrations that put Arlington on the map once a year for something besides the racetrack. 'Tis said he is also one of the unknowns who did a good share of the down-to-earth planning on our fine Youth Center. The old saying that too many cooks spoil pie didn't hold true there—every body and their uncle had a hand in it and it has turned out to be a place we're mighty proud of.

At this writing, Monday, the rides were expected for the carnival any day now, but they wouldn't guarantee it. The one thing they ARE sure of is a spectacular, colossal, stupendous fireworks display the evening of the 4th. Course it'll be nothing like the ones the vets have seen on other Independence Days spent overseas where ammunition was expendable and there they had nothing to do ,sometimes, but shoot it off, but — two to one, they'll like this one better. To leave us not loiter, come to the festivities immediately, if not sooner!

Share Burrows

Prairie dogs frequently share their burrows with owls, weasels and rattlesnakes, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. But this does not indicate a happy family arrangement, for the visitors often eat the young prairie dogs; and although the prairie dogs eat only grass, they destroy the young owls and sometimes bury the rattlesnakes alive.

Vacation school to open July 8

The Prospect Heights Summer Vacation School will open its doors for its third season Monday morning July 8. All children 4 years of age and older have been cordially invited to attend by Pastor Robert F. Klepper.

Classes will convene at the Community church daily, Monday through Friday, at 9:30 a.m. and close at 12:00 noon. The school will be in session two weeks, July 8 to 19 inclusive and a registered attendance of 125 is anticipated.

Music, Bible stories, handicraft and recreation will be the principal subjects covered during the school term.

Mrs. Robert F. Klepper, Mrs. Grover Jungbluth and Mrs. Homer C. Torreyson will serve as leaders in the music study features; Mrs Howard Spenks and Mrs. William Lucke will have charge of recreation facilities; Pastor Klepper, Mrs. Edward F. Tollefson and Mrs. R. F. Klepper will serve as teachers and story tellers in connection with Bible work; with Mrs John G. Spillar, Mrs. Homer E. Sylvester, Mrs. Arthur F. Brownell, Mrs. Kurt M. Krebs, Mrs. Fritz Weidig, Mrs. Theodore Lind, Mrs John G. Hane, and Mrs. Roy Goetschel serving as instructors in the handicraft division.

The vacation school program for the past two years has proved highly successful. It has been thoroughly enjoyed by the children and has served as a midsummer reunion of school activities. Folk songs, sewing for girls, clay and airplane modeling for boys, games and interestingly told Bible stories have a particular appeal to children. This year's program includes all of these successful features.

The handicraft leaders together with Mrs. Ralph Olsen, and Mrs. George H. Sheppard have planned a unique and interesting program for this year's session.

South church youth to go to Lake Geneva

About thirty young people of high school age from the South Church, Mt. Prospect, are to leave for the annual Chicago Baptist Youth Assembly at Conference Point Camp on Lake Geneva this coming Sunday morning. The group will leave by train at 9:26 in the morning. They return the following Sunday.

The Youth Assembly holds its sessions on the beautiful grounds of the Conference Point Camp where the young folks are housed and class and recreational activities are carried on. Each young person takes two or three classes studying the bible, church music, youth programs, drama or recreational methods. Periods are provided for group games, swimming, movies and group religious services.

This year the pastor of the South Church is included on the faculty of the assembly and will be teaching a course in methods for youth work in the local church.

Kelly's Kolumn

You'll see members of the Woman's Club behind stacks of hot dogs and pots of coffee at the refreshment booth. They're having fun in the short order business, but say they wouldn't care to make a career out of it. Who said the war was over? The "little women" have even drafted some of their unfortunate husbands for compulsory service in the refreshment stand.

Heavy gamblers gather round the American Legion bingo booth, receive a card and a handful of corn and are all set for a high evening.

Biggest attraction this year isn't a new ride but the gas filled lollipop-colored balloons. If you see a red dot on the sky don't get excited — it isn't a sun spot — some one just let go. One ingenious individual attached six balloons to a kite string. More fun than a kite when you let out the string — all five miles of it — and decidedly much less work.

I understand Mr. Bob Beatty, chairman of the park board, deserves a heap of credit for organizing the 4th of July celebrations that put Arlington on the map once a year for something besides the racetrack. 'Tis said he is also one of the unknowns who did a good share of the down-to-earth planning on our fine Youth Center. The old saying that too many cooks spoil pie didn't hold true there—every body and their uncle had a hand in it and it has turned out to be a piace we're mighty proud of.

At this writing, Monday, the rides were expected for the carnival any day now, but they wouldn't guarantee it. The one thing they ARE sure of is a spectacular, colossal, stupendous fireworks display the evening of the 4th. Course it'll be nothing like the ones the vets have seen on other Independence Days spent overseas where ammunition was expendable and there they had nothing to do ,sometimes, but shoot it off, but — two to one, they'll like this one better. To leave us not loiter, come to the festivities immediately, if not sooner!

Share Burrows

Prairie dogs frequently share their burrows with owls, weasels and rattlesnakes, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. But this does not indicate a happy family arrangement, for the visitors often eat the young prairie dogs; and although the prairie dogs eat only grass, they destroy the young owls and sometimes bury the rattlesnakes alive.

Independence DAY

170 years of freedom haven't taken the keen edge off an American's passion for independence.

Today right here in Arlington Heights, hundreds of customers of this bank are fighting for financial independence with the same grim determination which brought liberty to their forefathers in 1776.

Our deposits and the prosperity of the community speak well for their efforts.

YOUR DENTAL I. Q.

© American Dental Association

Q: Is it necessary to undergo extraction of my teeth in order to remove a cyst that has developed in the jaw bone? Will a cyst recur after it has been removed?—B. N.

A: Sometimes it is possible to treat cysts without extraction of the teeth. The treatment is determined entirely by the type and size of the cyst. When the cyst develops from an infection around the root ends of the tooth in which the pulp has died, removal of the tooth is imperative. If the cystic material, including the cyst membrane, is entirely eliminated at the time of the operation, there will be no recurrence. Usually, new bone fills in and health is restored to the tissues. However, it is always wise to check the condition of the area by x-ray examination within a year after removal of the teeth and cystic matter, in order to determine whether the area has healed normally. In normal cases, healing takes place rapidly and dental restorations may even be made within a few weeks

Childhood habits, such as "pillowing," can, if continued over a period of time, cause serious deformity of the jaws. For that reason, parents should take special care that their children do not sleep with fists doubled up under their faces or establish the thumb-sucking habit. It is far easier to correct these early habits than it is to correct jaw deformities or irregularity of the teeth.

Questions on G. I. bill

Question: I am an American citizen. I enlisted in the Canadian Air Force and received an honorable discharge. I have returned to my home and plan to resume my college education. Am I eligible for educational benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights?

Answer: Yes. The amendment to the G. I. Bill makes you eligible the same as those who served in the armed forces of the United States.

Question: I am eligible for 37 months of schooling under the G. I. Bill and would like to go to college. How can I make arrangements to stretch this eligibility over four years of college?

Answer: The Veteran's Administration has ruled that the ordinary school year is defined as a period of two semesters of 30 to 38 weeks in total length. If you will notify the veterans administration prior to the close of school in the spring that you are leaving school for the summer months and plan to return in the fall, your benefits will be stopped during the period that you are not attending school. In this way you can extend your college course over 4 - 9 month years or a total of 36 months.

Question: I am the widow of a Veteran who passed away shortly after his discharge. Am I entitled to any preference since I only recently completed an examination for Fedral Employment?

Answer: Yes, you are entitled to a 10-point preference as long as you remain unmarried and your deceased husband was honorably separated from active duty in the Armed forces of the United States during any war or campaign or expedition for which a campaign badge has been authorized.

Question: I made a loan after discharge and am now in a position to pay it back; shall I just meet scheduled payments or liquidate it at once?

Answer: If you desire to pay your debt before it is due, this right is yours and can be exercised at any time. Usually savings can be affected by prepayment.

Question: How long a period will I have to repay a loan?

Answer: The loan must be retired within twenty years.

Glenview frowns on home storm sewers

The village of Glenview has voiced its official disapproval of all homes having downspouts connected to sanitary sewers. Final warnings have been given householders to disconnect such storm pipes from the sewer.

The local fire department is also putting on a drive for house numbers for all homes. Many times the fire department is delayed because of lack of numbers on homes.

Speeds Vegetable Growth

Nitrate of soda makes early vegetables grow faster. The use of commercial fertilizer in the garden pays. Even though your garden soil is well supplied with barnyard manure the addition of nitrate of soda speeds up growth. The nitrogen necessary to plant growth in manure has to be set free by bacteria. These bacteria work well only when the soil is warm. The nitrogen in nitrate of soda can be used by a plant growing in a cool soil.

Prevent Bedsores

To prevent a person who is ill from getting bedsores, keep his skin in good condition by frequent bathing and massage. Keep the bed dry and free from lumps, wrinkles and crumbs.

Hope for new blood to run Palatine—blasts 'career' gyp school system

CAREER SCHOOLS

Today thousands of Illinois youth in adolescent stage are being mulct by the small loan fraternity. These boys and girls seeking livelihood and glamor of stage and radio are sought as victims by so-called talent scout schools. As we know, American radio, stage and screen has been glamorized to such an extent that it holds vistas of wealth and fame for youth which in a large degree become a prey.

It is my opinion that some action is imperative to curb this nefarious practice which is allowed to function under what seems to me special favors of the Illinois Legislature. These small loan groups are exempted very largely from laws protecting the great group of wage earners and operate in collusion with these so-called talent scout schools. From personal knowledge it is my opinion that these schools form a parasitical growth on the people of Illinois. They operate in a tweedle-de-dee and tweedle-de-dum fashion.

A boy or girl of adolescent age seeking elusive fame finds himself or herself enrolled in one of these gyp schools. They suddenly become aware that the allurement offered as an enrollment inducement is not 100% legitimate. They also, however, find themselves in a helpless situation, they find themselves tied up with a contract which is handled by the small loan group. This is the high pressure or leverage end of the unholy alliance. Should the Illinois youth rebel they find themselves under wage garnishment with no alternative or redress but to pay exorbitant fees for seemingly service of little or no value.

It is my belief that it would be impossible for the small loan group to function unless specially favored by the Illinois Legislature. It is my belief that the Illinois Legislature should immediately launch an investigation of this condition.

NEW BLOOD

Read with much satisfaction the letter sent into your paper by "An Enterprise Reader" regarding the coming of our new young doctor to Palatine, and the deliberate way your paper has of refusing to mention it.

I say "deliberate" because that is the way Palatine is regarding anything or anyone new coming to this town. We have lived here for a year — and in that year have noticed how these so-called Palatine "old-timers" resent new faces or new business enterprise coming here. They want to be able to call everyone by their first names and are perfectly satisfied to keep the town just as it is and has been for the past 20 years.

In fact one person who has made his home here for years, his parents before him and his grandparents before that, made such a remark to me when we moved here. "We don't want anyone else in Palatine. The town is big enough and we are satisfied with what we have here."

That is the attitude of most of the town and surrounding farm-community and they certainly make a newcomer feel it, without putting it into words. In my opinion, the town has been controlled too long by a certain group of families, and with so many new home owners coming to Palatine, I am in hopes of seeing a little new blood and a few new names on this town's list of officials.

This young doctor, who has come here, has spent much money and many years study to acquire his education and he certainly deserves a "welcome" from all of us. Be as fair to him as you are to the ones who have been here for thirty or forty years.

And now I am going to watch and see whether or not you print this in your "Fence Post". You probably won't, fearful it may hurt the feelings of some of your "old friends."

DELINQUENCY CURE

We hear so much about juvenile delinquency that I think it would be nice to hear something good about our youth.

Last Friday night during a heavy rainstorm a car from Franklin Park pulled up to a local gas station seeking information. In the car were four boys of high school age, including one who had just graduated from Leyden high school.

Also in the car was a young lad who neither spoke nor understood English. The other boys had met him in Franklin Park and saw he was lost. The only means of identification he had was an envelope bearing a Mexican name with an Arlington Hts. railroad address.

He didn't understand the boys' words, but did their intentions. They brought him here and after locating the approximate place where he could find his friends or acquaintances, they drove him out several miles to Landmeier road.

They no doubt could have found something more exciting and comfortable to do on a stormy night, but chose this method of aiding a fellow stranger.

I was proud of them, and who knows how far a series of such incidents could go in promoting international understanding. I don't know the boys' names and may never see them again, but I say the kids are o. k.

Lots of us could profit from this and other like happenings.

LOSES PANTS

We saw a fellow literally lose his pants in Schoppe's store in Palatine the other day.

Not the ones he had on, but a pair he had under his arm.

William Herberts came in with a pair he had recently purchased and told Harry they were a couple inches too big around the waist, since losing weight while working at home during his vacation.

Harry said, "we'll see what we can do", and took the pants. Mr. Herberts and the writer then got into a baseball discussion while Harry waited on another customer.

A little while later Harry came back and asked "now let's see what we can do."

"Where are my pants?" asked Herberts.

"They're sold", said Harry. "Bill Schmidt came in and they were exactly what he wanted".

But Herberts found another pair, and everyone was satisfied.

SEEDLESS SET

There is a new spray on the market that is supposed to make all tomatoe blooms set fruit and make the tomatoe seedless.

R. C. Knupper, Rand road nurseryman, talked us into trying it this year. Herman Timmerhaus says it really works. You just spray the blossoms, not the whole plant, using a small hand sprayer as an atomizer to do the job.

Bill Bockelman says his wife bought a couple of those new fangled hybrid tomato plants from Knupper that was supposed to bear two bushels of tomatoes per plant, and she is using the new spray. The dope is called "seedless set".

We're game to try anything once, and are using it on part of our tomato patch, but we'd hate to run over a five or ten acre field of tomatoes squirting at every blossom as it opened.

HUF

We thought out at Arlington Park the other day that Paddock Publications had lost an advertising manager.

We looked at the program and there was a jockey named Hufnagel on one of the horses. The last we'd heard, Huf was advertising man of these publications, but when we saw Hufnagel named to ride a horse, we thought maybe he had changed jobs.

Charlie is quite an admirer of the "new order" and at times we suspect him of being one of Joe Stalin's "fellow travelers".

So when we saw his name on the program we thought maybe the new order wasnt progressing fast enough in a conservative newspaper office, and that Huf was doing a bit of "Paul Revering" for the new order.

And when we watched the race and saw Hufnagel's mount come trailing in behind the field we thought that fellow traveler Huf wasn't getting along very fast in his dash for "One World".

IT HAPPENED

We have repeatedly harped in this column during the past several years on the danger of trains passing in the business district, and of one train pulling in while another was in the station.

We have warned continuously that the procedure some day was going to mean a fatal accident.

Well, it happened.

Last Wednesday a young truck driver was fatally injured at the Plum Grove crossing of a northbound train which was pulling in while a southbound train was loading passengers.

We were an eyewitness to that accident.

The signals were working, but the northbound train whistled its intention of coming in just before it hit the cab of the truck.

The village of Palatine has an ordinance section 19 of chapter 17 of the Palatine municipal code which says — "Railroads - passing train loading and unloading passengers. It shall be unlawful to operate any railroad car, train or locomotive in such a manner as to pass any railroad train or coach while it is stopped at a passenger station in the village for the purpose of taking on or discharging passengers". There it is.

The southbound 9:35 train was loading passengers. The northbound train, due at 9:10 but late as usual, pulled in with the other train still standing at the station.

A fatal accident took place.

The C. & N. W. Ry. was violating a village ordinance and killed a man.

Now, Mr. Mayor and village officials, what are you going to do about it? Are you going to let that sort of thing continue? The public looks for action and they expect action. It's up to you.

STRANGE TRIP

Miss Mae Eisler of Long Grove was seen passing down the line at 2:15 with her "black roadster" Tuesday. She had her suitcase with her. Wonder what it can be, a honeymoon trip or a preparation. Better watch when she comes back.

Class Day exercises were held in Arlington Hall June 20 under the auspices of the Senior class of Arlington Hts. high school. The ceremonies were the first held for several years and everyone who attended agreed they were the most entertaining ever put on. First number on the program was by Sears' Orchestra. Miss Jessie Beardsley read the class prophecy and we prophecy she will become one of this country's greatest novelists.

Alice Schneberger, class poet, read two poems entitled "The Bullfrog" and "Farewell", which showed she will go down in history as one of America's literary geniuses.

The glee club favored the audience with "Blow, Soft Winds."

Class will was read by Margaret Zoll.

Last number on the program was the senior sketch in which seven girls were working, and decided, tired of it all, to leave Arlington. Accordingly, they made a Ford out of their kitchen utensils and rode off the stage, while singing a farewell song.

Commencement exercises were held in the Presbyterian church where the Hon. Francis Blair was guest speaker.

Derby Day 4th at Palatine

Charley Dean is planning a gala fourth of July celebration for Palatine with Derby Day, a program that will eclipse the celebrations of other years.

Main attraction will be a two mile derby for a purse of $200 open to horses of either the 2:20 or 2:25 pace class. A Ford automobile race for a purse of $50 is another interesting event.

A match race for blood between C. H. Patten and Dr. J. W. Wilson is in the cards. This race was won by the doctor last year, and Mr. Patten says it's going to be different this year. Five other harness races are on the schedule, plus a motorcycle race. No admission for those under 15.

'Scavenger Act' fails in mission — seek change

"The Scavenger Act" of 1943 has failed in its mission to bring a fair amount of taxes due from delinquent properties to Illinois cities and counties, and it has been unsuccessful in returning these properties to builders needing economic land to meet today's demand for low-cost housing, McFayden, Chairman of the Illinois State Housing Board stated this morning.

McFayden's statement is based on a report recently completed by the State Housing Board, who conducted a state-wide survey on the effects of the "1943 Scavenger Act".

Pointing out among today's prime needs for adequate, low-cost housing for Illinois veterans is good improved land sites. Acres of delinquent property, said the Housing Chairman, lie dormant in communities that need good, thrifty building lots.

As a result of the veterans' need for improved low-cost lots, McFayden emphasized a proposal that the "Scavenger Act" should be amended to permit local housing authorities, and land clearance commissions to acquire tax delinquent land sites, using housing grants already provided by the State Housing Board.

By acquiring this defunct property through purchase at tax sales, or by the power of eminent domain, the local housing authority could make the improved lots available to veterans seeking a decent size lot with streets, water and sewage facilities, near schools, shopping districts, transportation and his place of employment. With this proposal, McFayden stated, local taxing bodies would once again regain taxes on property that had been a burden to the community, and the property would return to its original purpose as a building site.

In his statement, McFayden said, that although economic land is only one segment of the building cycle, it is important at this time that reasonable good building lots be made available for the homes which will follow once building materials flow through legitimate channels.

AROUND the CORNER

Dear Jane:

"No modern air-conditioned train is one bit better than our basement playroom," I said to Rob this morning, as I waved him bone to the 7:47. Though, goodness knows, both of us are thankful he can ride in such a coach on his daily trips to Chicago and back.

Frankly, I'm glad that I need only walk down a few steps into the room where I am writing to you now, to find the most heavenly temperature. It must be almost ninety outside at this very moment, and it is far from noon!

Have I told you that this playroom contains an old walnut reed organ? It is one of the joys of my life. It is an early Lyon and Healy, and is in surprisingly good condition. By that I mean, all keys and stops are in working condition, and the tones are lovely! The knee swell does its job, too.

I found this treasure in an antique shop in Walworth, Wis., for the magnificent sum of $25.00. I think, perhaps, it is the one great bargain of my antique shopping career. I don't suppose I have missed a day since purchasing it that I haven't played its ivory keys The boys are mad about it, too, and we've had many a pleasant hour here in this cool room during Bob's leave.

Bob leaves for New York this week-end with a friend he met while in school at N. U. They hope to see something of the great city before it is time for Bob to report aboard his ship on July 5th.

We're going to miss him, Jane, I'm not allowing myself to think too much about that now, except to keep repeating to myself that the war is over, and that, after all, he IS twenty years old now, and most boys are expected to go away from home when they reach that age. Still, I'm his mother — need I say more?

Are your children looking forword to the Fourth of July celebration? We always took our boys to Arlington Heights for the day — that is, we did in latter years. The high light for them was the fireworks displayed in the park at night. It was the one time they knew they could stay up late, and they loved every minute. Though, they nearly always fell asleep in the car on the way home after it was all over.

Speaking of the Fourth, the Sportman's Club here in Harvard, is sponsoring the annual July 4th races in the Driving Park. They will have the added attraction of showing Elmer Gantry, the only blind exhibition jumping horse in the world. He is 22 years old now, and has been blind since he was 11. He is owned and trained by Eleanor Getzendaner, Des Plaines, and she purchased him as a 3 year old.

The story of Elmer Gantry is one of great courage and intelligence — and love. Miss Getzendaner, owner of a string of fine show horses, trained him as one of her most dependable exhibition jumpers. He was the star of many a show until periodic ophalmia made him totally blind at eleven years of age.

At that time he was left out of the shows and retired, but affection for the horse led his mistress to saddle and ride him, slowly at first, with the rest of the horses. One day, approaching a ditch, Miss Getzendaner, gave the signal for him to take it easy and step down. To her surprise, Gantry jumped it. From there on it was a case of constant training and patient attention to teach him signals and proper timing.

Today, Elmer Gantry, enjoys a life of action. Confident and poised whether in the moving van, in the pasture or the stable or in the show, he goes through his paces. At all times he manifests complete trust in his mistress and is a perfect example of what intelligent and patient training can do to free an animal from th handicaps usually encountered by blindness.

I must close now, for I hear stirrings in the bunk rooms upstairs. Those boys of mine are about to descend upon me and demand "pancakes for breakfast, Mom!" It's been wonderful to have all four of them under the same roof at the same time. It's been noisy at times, I can assure you, but I'll take that kind of noise any day!

With love, Mary.

READING & WRITING

BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin McKown

The normal span of a man's life, says the Good Book, is three score years and ten. But according to the Russian scientist, Dr. Alexander A. Bogomolets, this is not normal. "Old age," he says in his book, "The Prolongation of Life," "can be treated just as any other illness because what we are accustomed to regard as normal old age is actually an abnormal, premature phenomenon."

A. A. BOGOMOLETS

Dr. Bogomolets is director of the Kiev Institute of Experimental Biology and Pathology, and discoverer of the famed serum ACS, which has been used successfully for the rejuvenation and prolongation of life.

Dr. Bogomolets cites some amazing examples of men and women who have outlived the customary quota of years. In Norway, in 1797, a Joseph Gurrington died at the age of 160. His oldest son at that time was 103; his youngest was nine. Another authority tells of John Roven, a Hungarian, and his wife Sarah, who lived in connubial bliss for 147 years. John died at the age of 172; Sarah at 164. Gueniot, a member of the French Academy of Medicine, reported the case of G. Jenkins, born in 1501, died in 1670.

From Gueniot also comes the following story. On July 31, 1554, Cardinal d'Armagnac, passing on the street, saw an eighty-year-old man crying at the door of his own home. When questioned, the old man answered that his father had given him a beating. Surprised, the Cardinal expressed a desire to see the father. An able-bodied man of 113 was presented to him. The old man explained he had beaten his son because he showed lack of respect for the grandfather, whom he had passed without greeting. When the Cardinal entered the house, he saw a third old man—of 143 years of age.

Jan Struther is well known here as the creator of "Mrs. Miniver," the book of sketches about an English housewife in wartime, which was a Book-of-the-Month Club selection a few years back. Miss Struther first started writing about Mrs. Miniver for the London Spectator, and ever since people have been confusing her with her heroine—even her own friends and relatives. Once she made Mrs. Miniver and her son Clem go to Cornwall for Easter. A close friend rang her up the following week and said, "Oh, you're back, are you? Cornwall must have been heavenly; I wish I'd been there." "So do I," retorted the author. Another time she tried to get even by sending Mrs. M. off for a very unpleasant visit to the dentist. She got a letter from a kind-hearted aunt saying, "Darling, I'm so sorry you've been having such a nasty time with your teeth."

THE MAILMAN'S CORNER

by Leland Ellis Truxell

This story comes to me from what the newspapers call "reliable sources." It is the story of Jimmy's great social triumph, or rather, the penalty he had to pay for it.

Jimmy's father was in a hurry. He had a conference, and was late.

"A-lice!" His voice was urgent. "Where's my good suit?"

"I laid it on the bed, George," Alice, his wife, called back.

"But it isn't here!" George shouted, exasperated. "Listen, Alice, I have only twenty minutes to make that conference!"

Alice, hurrying upstairs, found George pacing the floor in his underwear — a large man, slightly corpulent, blue eyes blazingly impatient. "It's —" Alice pointed toward the bed, turned to George puzzled. "Jimmy went to a party tonight. Do you suppose — "

"If he wore my best suit —" George began threateningly, then said with resignation — "Well, I'll wear another. But I looked good in that suit."

"George — I'm sorry," Alice hesitated, then continued breathlessly. "I sent your other suits to the cleaner. I didn't know—".

"You — what!" George's voice packed panic. "How am I — ?"

"You'll have to wear your work suit, George," Alice said apologetically. "It's all there is."

George slipped into his office suit grimly, and left in a huff.

At eleven P. M. Jimmy came home. George was waiting up, his face set sternly. Jimmy glanced sheepishly down at a six inch tear in the knee of his father's good suit. He tried to speak nonchalantly, but his voice quavered weakly.

"This was a special party, dad, and Jean wore her new dress. I just couldn't wear my old suit!"

"You have torn my good suit, Jimmy " George's voice was low, trembling with emotion. "Come down to the basement immediately!"

When they returned from the basement, Jimmy's eyes were filled with tears.

"Don't ever try anything like that again, son!" George warned.

"No, dad," Jimmy answered slowly. "I won't. Besides, the suit is torn, now. But it was worth every bit of the licking, Dad. Jean said I was the best dressed boy at the party. And Oh, dad—it—it was wonderful!"

George would never admit it—but there was a strange lump in his throat that for a long time, he could not swallow.

Hope for new blood to run Palatine—blasts 'career' gyp school system

CAREER SCHOOLS

Today thousands of Illinois youth in adolescent stage are being mulct by the small loan fraternity. These boys and girls seeking livelihood and glamor of stage and radio are sought as victims by so-called talent scout schools. As we know, American radio, stage and screen has been glamorized to such an extent that it holds vistas of wealth and fame for youth which in a large degree become a prey.

It is my opinion that some action is imperative to curb this nefarious practice which is allowed to function under what seems to me special favors of the Illinois Legislature. These small loan groups are exempted very largely from laws protecting the great group of wage earners and operate in collusion with these so-called talent scout schools. From personal knowledge it is my opinion that these schools form a parasitical growth on the people of Illinois. They operate in a tweedle-de-dee and tweedle-de-dum fashion.

A boy or girl of adolescent age seeking elusive fame finds himself or herself enrolled in one of these gyp schools. They suddenly become aware that the allurement offered as an enrollment inducement is not 100% legitimate. They also, however, find themselves in a helpless situation, they find themselves tied up with a contract which is handled by the small loan group. This is the high pressure or leverage end of the unholy alliance. Should the Illinois youth rebel they find themselves under wage garnishment with no alternative or redress but to pay exorbitant fees for seemingiy service of little or no value.

It is my belief that it would be impossible for the small loan group to function unless specially favored by the Illinois Legislature. It is my belief that the Illinois Legislature should immediately launch an investigation of this condition.

HUF

We thought out at Arlington Park the other day that Paddock Publications had lost an advertising manager.

We looked at the program and there was a jockey named Hufnagel on one of the horses. The last we'd heard, Huf was advertising man of these publications, but when we saw Hufnagel named to ride a horse, we thought maybe he had changed jobs.

Charlie is quite an admirer of the "new order" and at times we suspect him of being one of Joe Stalin's "fellow travelers".

So when we saw his name on the program we thought maybe the new order wasnt progressing fast enough in a conservative newspaper office, and that Huf was doing a bit of "Paul Revering" for the new order.

And when we watched the race and saw Hufnagel's mount come trailing in behind the field we thought that fellow traveler Huf wasn't getting along very fast in his dash for "One World".

IT HAPPENED

We have repeatedly harped in this column during the past several years on the danger of trains passing in the business district, and of one train pulling in while another was in the station.

We have warned continuously that the procedure some day was going to mean a fatal accident.

Well, it happened.

Last Wednesday a young truck driver was fatally injured at the Plum Grove crossing of a northbound train which was pulling in while a southbound train was loading passengers.

We were an eyewitness to that accident.

The signals were working, but the northbound train whistled its intention of coming in just before it hit the cab of the truck.

The village of Palatine has an ordinance section 19 of chapter 17 of the Palatine municipal code which says — "Railroads - passing train loading and unloading passengers. It shall be unlawful to operate any railroad car, train or locomotive in such a manner as to pass any railroad train or coach while it is stopped at a passenger station in the village for the purpose of taking on or discharging passengers". There it is.

The southbound 9:35 train was loading passengers. The northbound train, due at 9:10 but late as usual, pulled in with the other train still standing at the station.

A fatal accident took place.

The C. & N. W. Ry. was violating a village ordinance and killed a man.

Now, Mr. Mayor and village officials, what are you going to do about it? Are you going to let that sort of thing continue? The public looks for action and they expect action. It's up to you.

Weddings

St. Peter's church, Arlington Heights, was the scene Sunday of the wedding of Miss Martha Neumann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Neumann, and Carl Grandt, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grandt by Rev. Novack.

Miss Edith Scheibach, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Scheibach and Harry Helfers, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Helfers were united in marriage by Rev. Ellerbrake in the home of the groom's parents.

Giants win, 5-1

Bensenville Giants played a fine game with Chicago Sunday, winning 5-1. Rain halted the game in the ninth, but it was agreed to take the score at the end of the eighth.

Next game will be played Sunday against a good Chicago team at Central Park pavilion with dancing following the game. Music by Holtgren's orchestra.

STRANGE TRIP

Miss Mae Eisler of Long Grove was seen passing down the line at 2:15 with her "black roadster" Tuesday. She had her suitcase with her. Wonder what it can be, a honeymoon trip or a preparation. Better watch when she comes back.

Class Day exercises were held in Arlington Hall June 20 under the auspices of the Senior class of Arlington Hts. high school. The ceremonies were the first held for several years and everyone who attended agreed they were the most entertaining ever put on. First number on the program was by Sears' Orchestra. Miss Jessie Beardsley read the class prophecy and we prophecy she will become one of this country's greatest novelists.

Alice Schneberger, class poet, read two poems entitled "The Bullfrog" and "Farewell", which showed she will go down in history as one of America's literary geniuses.

The glee club favored the audience with "Blow, Soft Winds."

Class will was read by Margaret Zoll.

Last number on the program was the senior sketch in which seven girls were working, and decided, tired of it all, to leave Arlington. Accordingly, they made a Ford out of their kitchen utensils and rode off the stage, while singing a farewell song.

Commencement exercises were held in the Presbyterian church where the Hon. Francis Blair was guest speaker.

Derby Day 4th at Palatine

Charley Dean is planning a gala fourth of July celebration for Palatine with Derby Day, a program that will eclipse the celebrations of other years.

Main attraction will be a two mile derby for a purse of $200 open to horses of either the 2:20 or 2:25 pace class. A Ford automobile race for a purse of $50 is another interesting event.

A match race for blood between C. H. Patten and Dr. J. W. Wilson is in the cards. This race was won by the doctor last year, and Mr. Patten says it's going to be different this year. Five other harness races are on the schedule, plus a motorcycle race. No admission for those under 15.

'Scavenger Act' fails in mission — seek change

"The Scavenger Act" of 1943 has failed in its mission to bring a fair amount of taxes due from delinquent properties to Illinois cities and counties, and it has been unsuccessful in returning these properties to builders needing economic land to meet today's demand for low-cost housing, McFayden, Chairman of the Illinois State Housing Board stated this morning.

McFayden's statement is based on a report recently completed by the State Housing Board, who conducted a state-wide survey on the effects of the "1943 Scavenger Act".

Pointing out among today's prime needs for adequate, low-cost housing for Illinois veterans is good improved land sites. Acres of delinquent property, said the Housing Chairman, lie dormant in communities that need good, thrifty building lots.

As a result of the veterans' need for improved low-cost lots, McFayden emphasized a proposal that the "Scavenger Act" should be amended to permit local housing authorities, and land clearance commissions to acquire tax delinquent land sites, using housing grants already provided by the State Housing Board.

By acquiring this defunct property through purchase at tax sales, or by the power of eminent domain, the local housing authority could make the improved lots available to veterans seeking a decent size lot with streets, water and sewage facilities, near schools, shopping districts, transportation and his place of employment. With this proposal, McFayden stated, local taxing bodies would once again regain taxes on property that had been a burden to the community, and the property would return to its original purpose as a building site.

In his statement, McFayden said, that although economic land is only one segment of the building cycle, it is important at this time that reasonable good building lots be made available for the homes which will follow once building materials flow through legitimate channels.

AROUND the CORNER

Dear Jane:

"No modern air-conditioned train is one bit better than our basement playroom," I said to Rob this morning, as I waved him one to the 7:47. Though, goodness knows, both of us are thankful he can ride in such a coach on his daily trips to Chicago and back.

Frankly, I'm glad that I need only walk down a few steps into the room where I am writing to you now, to find the most heavenly temperature. It must be almost ninety outside at this very moment, and it is far from noon!

Have I told you that this playroom contains an old walnut reed organ? It is one of the joys of my life. It is an early Lyon and Healy, and is in surprisingly good condition. By that I mean, all keys and stops are in working condition, and the tones are lovely! The knee swell does its job, too.

I found this treasure in an antique shop in Walworth, Wis., for the magnificent sum of $25.00. I think, perhaps, it is the one great bargain of my antique shopping career. I don't suppose I have missed a day since purchasing it that I haven't played its ivory keys The boys are mad about it, too, and we've had many a pleasant hour here in this cool room during Bob's leave.

Bob leaves for New York this week-end with a friend he met while in school at N. U. They hope to see something of the great city before it is time for Bob to report aboard his ship on July 5th.

We're going to miss him, Jane, I'm not allowing myself to think too much about that now, except to keep repeating to myself that the war is over, and that, after all, he IS twenty years old now, and most boys are expected to go away from home when they reach that age. Still, I'm his mother — need I say more?

Are your children looking forword to the Fourth of July celebration? We always took our boys to Arlington Heights for the day — that is, we did in latter years. The high light for them was the fireworks displayed in the park at night. It was the one time they knew they could stay up late, and they loved every minute. Though, they nearly always fell asleep in the car on the way home after it was all over.

Speaking of the Fourth, the Sportman's Club here in Harvard, is sponsoring the annual July 4th races in the Driving Park. They will have the added attraction of showing Elmer Gantry, the only blind exhibition jumping horse in the world. He is 22 years old now, and has been blind since he was 11. He is owned and trained by Eleanor Getzendaner, Des Plaines, and she purchased him as a 3 year old.

The story of Elmer Gantry is one of great courage and intelligence — and love. Miss Getzendaner, owner of a string of fine show horses, trained him as one of her most dependable exhibition jumpers. He was the star of many a show until periodic ophalmia made him totally blind at eleven years of age.

At that time he was left out of the shows and retired, but affection for the horse led his mistress to saddle and ride him, slowly at first, with the rest of the horses. One day, approaching a ditch, Miss Getzendaner, gave the signal for him to take it easy and step down. To her surprise, Gantry jumped it. From there on it was a case of constant training and patient attention to teach him signals and proper timing.

Today, Elmer Gantry, enjoys a life of action. Confident and poised whether in the moving van, in the pasture or the stable or in the show, he goes through his paces. At all times he manifests complete trust in his mistress and is a perfect example of what intelligent and patient training can do to free an animal from th handicaps usually encountered by blindness.

I must close now, for I hear stirrings in the bunk rooms upstairs. Those boys of mine are about to descend upon me and demand "pancakes for breakfast, Mom!" It's been wonderful to have all four of them under the same roof at the same time. It's been noisy at times, I can assure you, but I'll take that kind of noise any day!

With love, Mary.

READING & WRITING

BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin McKown

The normal span of a man's life, says the Good Book, is three score years and ten. But according to the Russian scientist, Dr. Alexander A. Bogomolets, this is not normal. "Old age," he says in his book, "The Prolongation of Life," "can be treated just as any other illness because what we are accustomed to regard as normal old age is actually an abnormal, premature phenomenon."

A. A. BOGOMOLETS

Dr. Bogomolets is director of the Kiev Institute of Experimental Biology and Pathology, and discoverer of the famed serum ACS, which has been used successfully for the rejuvenation and prolongation of life.

Dr. Bogomolets cites some amazing examples of men and women who have outlived the customary quota of years. In Norway, in 1797, a Joseph Gurrington died at the age of 160. His oldest son at that time was 103; his youngest was nine. Another authority tells of John Roven, a Hungarian, and his wife Sarah, who lived in connubial bliss for 147 years. John died at the age of 172; Sarah at 164. Gueniot, a member of the French Academy of Medicine, reported the case of G. Jenkins, born in 1501, died in 1670.

From Gueniot also comes the following story. On July 31, 1554, Cardinal d'Armagnac, passing on the street, saw an eighty-year-old man crying at the door of his own home. When questioned, the old man answered that his father had given him a beating. Surprised, the Cardinal expressed a desire to see the father. An able-bodied man of 113 was presented to him. The old man explained he had beaten his son because he showed lack of respect for the grandfather, whom he had passed without greeting. When the Cardinal entered the house, he saw a third old man—of 143 years of age.

Jan Struther is well known here as the creator of "Mrs. Miniver," the book of sketches about an English housewife in wartime, which was a Book-of-the-Month Club selection a few years back. Miss Struther first started writing about Mrs. Miniver for the London Spectator, and ever since people have been confusing her with her heroine—even her own friends and relatives. Once she made Mrs. Miniver and her son Clem go to Cornwall for Easter. A close friend rang her up the following week and said, "Oh, you're back, are you? Cornwall must have been heavenly; I wish I'd been there." "So do I," retorted the author. Another time she tried to get even by sending Mrs. M. off for a very unpleasant visit to the dentist. She got a letter from a kind-hearted aunt saying, "Darling, I'm so sorry you've been having such a nasty time with your teeth."

THE MAILMAN'S CORNER

by Leland Ellis Truxell

This story comes to me from what the newspapers call "reliable sources." It is the story of Jimmy's great social triumph, or rather, the penalty he had to pay for it.

Jimmy's father was in a hurry. He had a conference, and was late.

"A-lice!" His voice was urgent. "Where's my good suit?"

"I laid it on the bed, George," Alice, his wife, called back.

"But it isn't here!" George shouted, exasperated. "Listen, Alice, I have only twenty minutes to make that conference!"

Alice, hurrying upstairs, found George pacing the floor in his underwear — a large man, slightly corpulent, blue eyes blazingly impatient. "It's —" Alice pointed toward the bed, turned to George puzzled. "Jimmy went to a party tonight. Do you suppose — ",

"If he wore my best suit —" George began threateningly, then said with resignation — "Well, I'll wear another. But I looked good in that suit."

"George — I'm sorry," Alice hesitated, then continued breathlessly. "I sent your other suits to the cleaner. I didn't know—".

"You — what!" George's voice packed panic. "How am I — ?"

"You'll have to wear your work suit, George," Alice said apologetically. "It's all there is."

George slipped into his office suit grimly, and left in a huff.

At eleven P. M. Jimmy came home. George was waiting up, his face set sternly. Jimmy glanced sheepishly down at a six inch tear in the knee of his father's good suit. He tried to speak nonchalantly, but his voice quavered weakly.

"This was a special party, dad, and Jean wore her new dress. I just couldn't wear my old suit!"

"You have torn my good suit, Jimmy " George's voice was low, trembling with emotion. "Come down to the basement immediately!"

When they returned from the basement, Jimmy's eyes were filled with tears.

"Don't ever try anything like that again, son!" George warned.

"No, dad," Jimmy answered slowly. "I won't. Besides, the suit is torn, now. But it was worth every bit of the licking, Dad. Jean said I was the best dressed boy at the party. And Oh, dad—it—it was wonderful!"

George would never admit it—but there was a strange lump in his throat that for a long time, he could not swallow.

Have 2 years to reinstate insurance kept up by VA

More than $220,000,000 of private life insurance was guaranteed for approximately 85,000 persons when they entered the armed forces during World War II — and most of the amount is still under guarantee, it is learned from Veterans Administration officials.

These "civilian" policies are maintained by the VA under provisions of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, which enabled policyholders to keep up as much as $10,000 in commercial life insurance while in service and for two years after discharge, without paying the current premiums.

Under this act, the U. S. Government guarantees eventual payment of premium, so that the policies will not lapse for the period covered by the act.

Policies were held in 514 commercial life insurance companies and associations by the 85,000 veterans who took advantage of the act during the war.

By May 1, the beneficiaries of 1,630 policyholders received death benefits, totaling $3,845,000, although the insured veterans might not have been making regular premium payments during service thanks to the Civil Relief Act. Under its provisions, their insurance was deemed to have been in force.

Arrangements must be made within two years from the date of separation from service to pay any indebtedness created while the Government's guarantee was in force.

If the veteran does not pay the premiums and interest guaranteed by the government before the expiration of the two-year period following his discharge, the insurance company treats the amount due as a policy loan, VA officials said. They added that if the cash value of the policy is less than the amount due at the expiration of the period of protection, the policy will terminate and the government will pay the insurance company the difference between the amount due and the cash surrender value.

A total of 718 claims were paid by the VA up to May 1 for a cash settlement of $80,923. Officials said the government considers this amount as a debt due the U. S. by the policyholders. Since the Civil Relief Act was created, 7,800 veterans have filed applications to withdraw the government's guarantee; but more than 74,000 policies still are on the VA's book, nationally, for the guarantee.

Weeds must be cut before they bloom, is advice

"As many as 40,000 weed seeds have been counted in a square foot of soil" is the amazing statement recently made by L. V. Sherwood, assistant professor of crop production, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

To keep weed seeds from being scattered wholesale over acres of land, Sherwood warns that the weeds must be cut before they blossom. Many weed seeds ripen before the plant blooms.

Sherwood also explains that:

1. There are many weed seeds already in the soil.
2. There'll be many more there if you don't prevent seed production of weeds.
3. You can destroy the seeds already in the soil by encouraging them to grow so that the resulting seedlings can be killed.
4. Usually only the weed seeds in the upper two or three inches of soil grow. Get them there by early plowing, so that they can germinate and be destroyed early —before the crop is planted.

As a further hint to farmers, the specialist warns that seeds now at plow depth won't be turned to the surface until next spring, when they will also have to be destroyed. It takes three or four years of constant effort to clear land of weed seeds.

LAW on the FARM

Wills. — Generally speaking, good wills are not so difficult to prepare as most people believe. Bad wills are nearly always a result of wanting to provide for too many contingencies, hasty preparation, bad grammar or failure to regard the fairly simple requirements of the law.

The Illinois legislature has definitely set out the essential elements of a valid will. Briefly stated, they are as follows:

1. A person 18 years old, of sound mind and memory, may make a will.
2. The will must be in writing and signed by the maker or by someone in his presence by his direction.
3. The will must be witnessed and signed in the presence by the maker by two credible witnesses who will swear before the county court that they saw the deceased sign the will, or that they acknowledged it to be his act.

Dates and addresses are not necessary in a will, although it is a good plan to insert a date showing when it was made. The language should be simple and direct so that it will not be misinterpreted. Due to the fact that courts have had to construe the meaning of particular phrases in wills and have found it necessary to give them meanings which may not always correspond with the maker's intent, it is worth while to consult a competent lawyer about the wording of the instrument.

Wills may be used to dispose of all kinds of property, both real and personal, to create trusts or to give many different kinds of limited interests to desired parties.

The following will is adequate to give all a man's property to his wife:

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT
June 1, 1946

I give all my property, both real and personal, to my wife, Sarah.

John Jones (Signature)
(Witness)
Mary Brown (Signature)
(Witness)

Frequently persons in their last illness, under conditions making the execution of a written will impracticable, wish to make a testamentary disposition of their property. The legislature has provided that under such circumstances personal property can be conveyed by an oral statement, provided it is heard by two disinterested witnesses and committed to writing within 20 days after it is made, and provided further that it shall be proved by two other disinterested witnesses that the will was committed to writing within 10 days after the maker's death. Real estate cannot be disposed of in this manner.

The statutory law on wills may be found in Chapter 3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, section 193-245. Methods of revocation are stated in section 197.

Causes Cloudburst

The so-called cloudburst is caused by violent uprushes of air which prevent the condensing raindrops from falling to the ground. When a large amount of water has accumulated at high levels and the upward currents weaken, all of the water falls at once. During a severe cloudburst at Porto Bello, Panama, almost 2½ inches of rain fell in three minutes.

DDT in cow barns lasts

One application of water-wettable DDT on barn walls and ceilings will last all summer if dust, chaff and cobwebs don't cover the DDT deposit. H. B. Petty, entomologist for the University of Illinois College of Agriculture and the State Natural History Survey, recommends using 20 pounds of actual DDT to every 100 gallons of water if you plan to make one spraying last all summer.

Since water-wettable DDT powder isn't all DDT, you'll have to figure out the proportions on the basis of the DDT content. If you have 50 per cent DDT powder, then 40 pounds of powder will be required to give 20 pounds of the actual DDT to 100 gallons of water — or, if your DDT powder is a 25 per cent concentration, it will take 80 pounds.

Each gallon will cover about 500 square feet effectively. Petty suggests that the rate of application will be about right if you spray the walls heavily enough to make them good and wet, but not quite enough to make the spray run. And remember that the spray must be kept stirred up so that the powder won't settle out.

Modern Low Cost Home

A cool court is one of the many pleasing features of the modern low cost home shown above as pictured in the July issue of Good Housekeeping magazine. Bright, breeze-swept rooms, pleasant views through spacious windows and a step-saving plan are other features that make this house a happy solution to the housing problems of many average American families.

Have 2 years to reinstate insurance kept up by VA

More than $220,000,000 of private life insurance was guaranteed for approximately 85,000 persons when they entered the armed forces during World War II — and most of the amount is still under guarantee, it is learned from Veterans Administration officials.

These "civilian" policies are maintained by the VA under provisions of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, which enabled policyholders to keep up as much as $10,000 in commercial life insurance while in service and for two years after discharge, without paying the current premiums.

Under this act, the U. S. Government guarantees eventual payment of premium, so that the policies will not lapse for the period covered by the act.

Policies were held in 514 commercial life insurance companies and associations by the 85,000 veterans who took advantage of the act during the war.

By May 1, the beneficiaries of 1,630 policyholders received death benefits, totaling $3,845,000, although the insured veterans might not have been making regular premium payments during service thanks to the Civil Relief Act. Under its provisions, their insurance was deemed to have been in force.

Arrangements must be made within two years from the date of separation from service to pay any indebtedness created while the Government's guarantee was in force.

If the veteran does not pay the premiums and interest guaranteed by the government before the expiration of the two-year period following his discharge, the insurance company treats the amount due as a policy loan, VA officials said. They added that if the cash value of the policy is less than the amount due at the expiration of the period of protection, the policy will terminate and the government will pay the insurance company the difference between the amount due and the cash surrender value.

A total of 718 claims were paid by the VA up to May 1 for a cash settlement of $80,923. Officials said the government considers this amount as a debt due the U. S. by the policyholders. Since the Civil Relief Act was created, 7,800 veterans have filed applications to withdraw the government's guarantee; but more than 74,000 policies still are on the VA's book, nationally, for the guarantee.

Weeds must be cut before they bloom, is advice

"As many as 40,000 weed seeds have been counted in a square foot of soil" is the amazing statement recently made by L. V. Sherwood, assistant professor of crop production, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

To keep weed seeds from being scattered wholesale over acres of land, Sherwood warns that the weeds must be cut before they blossom. Many weed seeds ripen before the plant blooms.

Sherwood also explains that:

1. There are many weed seeds already in the soil.
2. There'll be many more there if you don't prevent seed production of weeds.
3. You can destroy the seeds already in the soil by encouraging them to grow so that the resulting seedlings can be killed.
4. Usually only the weed seeds in the upper two or three inches of soil grow. Get them there by early plowing, so that they can germinate and be destroyed early —before the crop is planted.

As a further hint to farmers, the specialist warns that seeds now at plow depth won't be turned to the surface until next spring, when they will also have to be destroyed. It takes three or four years of constant effort to clear land of weed seeds.

LAW on the FARM

Wills. — Generally speaking, good wills are not so difficult to prepare as most people believe. Bad wills are nearly always a result of wanting to provide for too many contingencies, hasty preparation, bad grammar or failure to regard the fairly simple requirements of the law.

The Illinois legislature has definitely set out the essential elements of a valid will. Briefly stated, they are as follows:

1. A person 18 years old, of sound mind and memory, may make a will.
2. The will must be in writing and signed by the maker or by someone in his presence by his direction.
3. The will must be witnessed and signed in the presence by the maker by two credible witnesses who will swear before the county court that they saw the deceased sign the will, or that they acknowledged it to be his act.

Dates and addresses are not necessary in a will, although it is a good plan to insert a date showing when it was made. The language should be simple and direct so that it will not be misinterpreted. Due to the fact that that courts have had to construe the meaning of particular phrases in wills and have found it necessary to give them meanings which may not always correspond with the maker's intent, it is worth while to consult a competent lawyer about the wording of the instrument.

Wills may be used to dispose of all kinds of property, both real and personal, to create trusts or to give many different kinds of limited interests to desired parties.

The following will is adequate to give all a man's property to his wife:

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT
June 1, 1946

I give all my property, both real and personal, to my wife, Sarah.

John Jones (Signature)
(Witness)
Mary Brown (Signature)
(Witness)

Frequently persons in their last illness, under conditions making the execution of a written will impracticable, wish to make a testamentary disposition of their property. The legislature has provided that under such circumstances personal property can be conveyed by an oral statement, provided it is heard by two disinterested witnesses and committed to writing within 20 days after it is made, and provided further that it shall be proved by two other disinterested witnesses that the will was committed to writing within 10 days after the maker's death. Real estate cannot be disposed of in this manner.

The statutory law on wills may be found in Chapter 3 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, section 193-245. Methods of revocation are stated in section 197.

Causes Coudburst

The so-called cloudburst is caused by violent uprushes of air which prevent the condensing raindrops from falling to the ground. When a large amount of water has accumulated at high levels and the upward currents weaken, all of the water falls at once. During a severe cloudburst at Porto Bello, Panama, almost 2½ inches of rain fell in three minutes.

DDT in cow barns lasts

One application of water-wettable DDT on barn walls and ceilings will last all summer if dust, chaff and cobwebs don't cover the DDT deposit. H. B. Petty, entomologist for the University of Illinois College of Agriculture and the State Natural History Survey, recommends using 20 pounds of actual DDT to every 100 gallons of water if you plan to make one spraying last all summer.

Since water-wettable DDT powder isn't all DDT, you'll have to figure out the proportions on the basis of the DDT content. If you have 50 per cent DDT powder, then 40 pounds of powder will be required to give 20 pounds of the actual DDT to 100 gallons of water — or, if your DDT powder is a 25 per cent concentration, it will take 80 pounds.

Each gallon will cover about 500 square feet effectively. Petty suggests that the rate of application will be about right if you spray the walls heavily enough to make them good and wet, but not quite enough to make the spray run. And remember that the spray must be kept stirred up so that the powder won't settle out.

Farmers urged to harvest grass, legume seeds

Farmers of Cook County are urged by Mr. W. A. Hintz, member of the local AAA Committee, to give serious consideration to the possibility of harvesting additional acreages of clover and alfalfa seed. In addition to prospects that seed will command good prices, Mr. Hintz points out that the Government is also offering a special payment of 9 cents per pound for all red clover and 7 cents per pound for all alfalfa and alsike clover seed harvested during the current year and moved into commercial channels prior to January 1, 1947. These payments should make it financially worthwhile to harvest even some of the low-yielding fields.

Grass and legume seeds, says the committeeman, are more vitally needed now than ever before to provide future feed supplies and to maintain soil fertility. Not only have the soils of this nation suffered from the heavy production of crops during the war years, but these same soils must continue to carry the extra burden of production while war-torn countries are restoring their agriculture. Heavy seedings of legumes in the future will be required to repair this damage.

It is hoped that American farmers will meet this need by exceeding last year's harvests by some 800,000 acres. On a local basis, Mr. Hintz points out that extra acres harvested this year will be good insurance against the shortages that farmers have experienced during the past few seeding seasons. Prospects of good financial returns afford the incentive — the proper cutting and harvesting of additional acres and the careful cleaning and storing of seeds afford the means.

Pruning Trees

Pruning of fruit trees should be done primarily to increase the bearing of quality fruit and to keep the tree in a healthy, vigorous state of growth.

Warn of high prices for Illinois farm land

Recent sale prices of farm land in Illinois should stand as a warning to prospective farm buyers. With many sales reported at $350 an acre or more, and an occasional sale at $400, there is every indication that we are facing a land price situation similar to that following the first world war, according to H. C. M. Case, head of the department of agricultural economics, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

It was just 26 years ago this May that prices of farm products started the rapid decline which brought disaster to many farmers who had recently purchased land. Some farmers who made sizeable payments on land purchased in the spring of 1920 never took possession of it. Others who moved to their newly purchased farms in 1918-20 were unable to meet even the interest payments on their mortgages.

Professor Case, writing in the June issue of Illinois Farm Economics, added that it was just 13 years ago that many of the best farms in Illinois changed hands at less than one-third and frequently at one-fourth of the price they had brought in 1919-20. The price collapse of the early 30's forced many farmers who had incurred heavy debts in 1919-20 to give up, after more than ten years of effort, the farms they had struggled to pay for.

Learn a lesson

"Although large numbers of farmers throughout the United States were tided over, until prices began to improve, by debt extension agreements reached thru the efforts of the volunteer farm debt adjustment committees, this chain of events should serve as a lesson to prospective land purchasers," the economist said. "Most farmers who have struggled with debts for years have been satisfied to use the present opportunity to liquidate them and to play safe by not assuming other heavy indebtedness.

"Improved prices and large farm production during the war years have made possible the accumulation by many farmers of sizeable savings, but people tend to forget how short-lived farm prosperity has been. These savings have been possible partly because normal replacements of farm machinery, buildings and other equipment have not been possible. Farm income cannot accumulate so rapidly in the years immediately ahead because many of these postponed replacements will have to be made."

Mere ownership of a farm does not assure an adequate family income. The down payment often drains away savings ticketed for emergencies and education of children, and the interest and principal payments on a heavy mortgage may necessitate unjustifiable sacrifices of the necessities of everyday living. It was not uncommon in the early 30's for farm families to jeopardize their security by allowing insurance policies to lapse and to reduce food, clothing and education to a bare minimum in a final effort to save the farm.

Higher prices

While it is probable that there will be further price inflation, farm expenses will probably increase more than farm income. The high crop yields obtained during the war years can hardly be expected to continue indefinitely. As soon as the emergency demand for food is past, most farms should increase the acreage of soil-building legumes in the interest of soil fertility, and as a result there will be a smaller volume of grain to be sold.

This is definitely a time to weigh all conditions before incurring heavy debt in purchasing farm land. At present inflated prices even cash purchases of land should be made with utmost caution and only after the most careful consideration of all the factors mentioned here.

Devil Trap

A pattern of loops, supposed to entangle the feet of the devil if he tried to enter the premises, was chalked on the doorsteps of houses and shops in provincial England as late as 1860. Even today, one of these "devil traps" may be seen in the west entrance of the great Ely cathedral, where it was inlaid in the floor several hundred years ago.

Red spiders evergreens

Red spider damage to evergreens, principally varieties of spruce and Andora juniper, has been observed in several parts of the state, reports H. W. Gilbert, landscape gardening extension University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

H. B. Petty, extension entomologist, points out that the spiders can be knocked off the trees by using water. Water pressure should be at least 40 pounds, and the operation should be performed early in the morning or in the evening. If the water is sprayed during the heat of the day, the sun may cause a burn where the droplet of water lodges.

Gilbert says that if left unchecked, the red spider can practically ruin a large tree. He believes the warm weather of March brought on the spiders somewhat earlier than usual.

Farmers urged to harvest grass, legume seeds

Farmers of Cook County are urged by Mr. W. A. Hintz, member of the local AAA Committee, to give serious consideration to the possibility of harvesting additional acreages of clover and alfalfa seed. In addition to prospects that seed will command good prices, Mr. Hintz points out that the Government is also offering a special payment of 9 cents per pound for all red clover and 7 cents per pound for all alfalfa and alsike clover seed harvested during the current year and moved into commercial channels prior to January 1, 1947. These payments should make it financially worthwhile to harvest even some of the low-yielding fields.

Grass and legume seeds, says the committeeman, are more vitally needed now than ever before to provide future feed supplies and to maintain soil fertility. Not only have the soils of this nation suffered from the heavy production of crops during the war years, but these same soils must continue to carry the extra burden of production while war-torn countries are restoring their agriculture. Heavy seedings of legumes in the future will be required to repair this damage.

It is hoped that American farmers will meet this need by exceeding last year's harvests by some 800,000 acres. On a local basis, Mr. Hintz points out that extra acres harvested this year will be good insurance against the shortages that farmers have experienced during the past few seeding seasons. Prospects of good financial returns afford the incentive — the proper cutting and harvesting of additional acres and the careful cleaning and storing of seeds afford the means.

Pruning Trees

Pruning of fruit trees should be done primarily to increase the bearing of quality fruit and to keep the tree in a healthy, vigorous state of growth.

Warn of high prices for Illinois farm land

Recent sale prices of farm land in Illinois should stand as a warning to prospective farm buyers. With many sales reported at $350 an acre or more, and an occasional sale at $400, there is every indication that we are facing a land price situation similar to that following the first world war, according to H. C. M. Case, head of the department of agricultural economics, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

It was just 26 years ago this May that prices of farm products started the rapid decline which brought disaster to many farmers who had recently purchased land. Some farmers who made sizeable payments on land purchased in the spring of 1920 never took possession of it. Others who moved to their newly purchased farms in 1918-20 were unable to meet even the interest payments on their mortgages.

Professor Case, writing in the June issue of Illinois Farm Economics, added that it was just 13 years ago that many of the best farms in Illinois changed hands at less than one-third and frequently at one-fourth of the price they had brought in 1919-20. The price collapse of the early 30's forced many farmers who had incurred heavy debts in 1919-20 to give up, after more than ten years of effort, the farms they had struggled to pay for.

Learn a lesson

"Although large numbers of farmers throughout the United States were tided over, until prices began to improve, by debt extension agreements reached thru the efforts of the volunteer farm debt adjustment committees, this chain of events should serve as a lesson to prospective land purchasers," the economist said. "Most farmers who have struggled with debts for years have been satisfied to use the present opportunity to liquidate them and to play safe by not assuming other heavy indebtedness.

"Improved prices and large farm production during the war years have made possible the accumulation b y many farmers of sizeable savings, but people tend to forget how short-lived farm prosperity has been. These savings have been possible partly because normal replacements of farm machinery, buildings and other equipment have not been possible. Farm income cannot accumulate so rapidly in the years immediately ahead because many of these postponed replacements will have to be made."

Mere ownership of a farm does not assure an adequate family income. The down payment often drains away savings ticketed for emergencies and education of children, and the interest and principal payments on a heavy mortgage may necessitate unjustifiable sacrifices of the necessities of everyday living. It was not uncommon in the early 30's for farm families to jeopardize their security by allowing insurance policies to lapse and to reduce food, clothing and education to a bare minimum in a final effort to save the farm.

Higher prices

While it is probable that there will be further price inflation, farm expenses will probably increase more than farm income. The high crop yields obtained during the war years can hardly be expected to continue indefinitely. As soon as the emergency demand for food is past, most farms should increase the acreage of soil-building legumes in the interest of soil fertility, and as a result there will be a smaller volume of grain to be sold.

This is definitely a time to weigh all conditions before incurring heavy debt in purchasing farm land. At present inflated prices even cash purchases of land should be made with utmost caution and only after the most careful consideration of all the factors mentioned here.

Devil Trap

A pattern of loops, supposed to entangle the feet of the devil if he tried to enter the premises, was chalked on the doorsteps of houses and shops in provincial England as late as 1860. Even today, one of these "devil traps" may be seen in the west entrance of the great Ely cathedral, where it was inlaid in the floor several hundred years ago.

Red spiders evergreens

Red spider damage to evergreens, principally varieties of spruce and Andora juniper, has been observed in several parts of the state, reports H. W. Gilbert, landscape gardening extension University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

H. B. Petty, extension entomologist, points out that the spiders can be knocked off the trees by using water. Water pressure should be at least 40 pounds, and the operation should be performed early in the morning or in the evening. If the water is sprayed during the heat of the day, the sun may cause a burn where the droplet of water lodges.

Gilbert says that if left unchecked, the red spider can practically ruin a large tree. He believes the warm weather of March brought on the spiders somewhat earlier than usual.

Diphtheria rate drops, but will probably go up

Due to intense immunization programs of infants and school children, the incidence of diphtheria in Suburban Cook County at the present time is lower than at any time in history, according to a statement issued today by Dr. E. A. Piszczek, Director, Cook County Department of Public Health. "However, there is no indications," Dr. Piszczek stated, "that this low rate will continue. If Suburban Cook County follows the pattern of other areas throughout the country and throughout the world, we shall soon begin to see an increase in diphtheria cases among adults as well as infants," Dr. Piszczek continued. The prevalence of a severe strain of organism called "diphtheria gravis" is responsible for this adult group attack.

As a precaution against diphtheria physicians are encouraged to do Schick tests on all expectant mothers. If found to be positive, immunization should be done during the normal course of pregnancy. In this way passive immunity from mother to child will protect the new born baby in its first months of life.

Schick test and immunization materials will be furnished free to physicians upon request to the Cook County Department of Public Health, Dr. Piszczek said.

Be wary of peddlers who say profits to veterans units

A sympathetic public was cautioned today by Robert D. Beer, Manager for the Illinois Regional Office of the Veterans Administration, Chicago, to be wary of solicitors claiming Veterans Administration sanction for their sales projects, particularly magazine subscriptions.

While currently in Chicago there have been few complaints of mis-representation in the sales of magazines, fraudulent practices have been reported recently in a large midwestern city, Mr. Beer said. In addition, information on record with the Better Business Bureau of Chicago indicates that during last December and the early part of this year, salesmen were claiming Veterans Administration backing when no such support existed.

In the past few months solicitors have alleged funds from sales were to be used for the welfare of disabled veterans, or have claimed that the Veterans Administration Hospital, Hines, Illinois, was backing their efforts, or artificial limbs were to be purchased with sales profits.

Funds for the benefit of veterans of all wars are administered by the Veterans Administration through appropriations made by the Congress of the United States in Washington, D. C.

Saturday night boxing at Ski hill punch bowl

Old-time boxing — one-air battles — the kind of shows our dads saw behind factory fences and in vacant lots in the good old days when fighting was a killing business and decisions were given only by knockout! That same spirit of vigorous outdoor excitement under the summer sky is now being revived by Promotor Pete Sanstol, the "Blond Dynamo." This former world's champion bantamweight who flattened such foes as Tony Abrusci, Terry Roth, Ollie Bartlett, Carl Cavelli, Joe Scalfaro and many others in Madison Square Garden and in Canada after his European victories, has long been a producer who gives his followers more than a card of boxing matches.

His fight-promotion stunts in Montreal helped build the stadium there. Sanstol believes, as he practiced in the ring, in pitched battles, exhibitions of action in which each warrior throws everything he's got at his adversary.

The fights, conducted under rules of the American Athletic Union, will be staged every Saturday evening throughout the summer season, beginning July 6, in the Punch Bowl, foot of Norge Ski Club's towering ski hill in Fox River Grove. This arena, located at the spot where the world's champion skiiers land after a 200-foot leap from the famous steel hill, seems to have been designed by nature to Sanstol's specifications. Surrounded by three slopes that offer unobstructed view of the battle ground, the arena is a natural if ever there was one.

Around the ring are a thousand chairs that rent for $1.10. Back of these along the slopes is standing room for thousands of other fans without crowding, and there isn't a blind spot in the whole camp! General admission is 75c, with a cut-rate fee of 25c for youngsters of 16 and under. Tax included.

Referee for the bouts is Tommy Kluth, who has sent many a gallant glovester to the canvas himself and now surrounds himself with fighters of the present generation who can give what's wanted.

The first night's massacre will feature a team of Elgin warriors matched against 7 Chicagoans. Among the Elginers are Ray and Don Dicz, Eddie Fallor, Harry Bulock and Don Kelly. The Chicago team includes Al Mahoney, Jimmy Macolm, Billy Arthur, Bill Creech, and Ronny Kuehn. Matchmaker is Joe Keating.

Poole Fords win 1st two tourney games easily

The George Poole Fords, Arlington Heights, Legion entry, acquired a mighty display of power at the bat to overwhelm a shaky squad from Park Ridge last week end.

This outburst may be a warning to the city teams who are next on the schedule for the Legion nine.

Saturday afternoon, young Bob Thollander chalked up a neat two hitter and also waved the whitewash brush at the invaders. Bob pitched brilliantly all the way, walking none and striking out 12 men.

On Sunday morning the boys travelled to the Park Ridge diamond and again showed a lusty display of punch to coast to a 15-2 victory. Led by Chuck Bracke, who again turned in a masterpiece, the boys were never in trouble.

The fun for the boys is over now for they must tangle with the winner of the Kilbourne Park-Humboldt Park series. The dates of these games aren't known as yet but word will be passed along through the boys on the team. So if you're interested ask the boys on the team when you see them.

If there is no tournament game scheduled for Saturday there will be another game with game time set at 2:30.

Erosion Loss

Two hundred eighty-two million acres of crop and grazing land have been lost in the United States by water and wind erosion.

Rose Lo, Nicks, Klehms win in Heights softball

Rose Lo proved to be too strong for the Mayfair Food team of Arlington Heights, taking the latter squad to camp, 7 to 3 in the Arlington Heights softball league. Rose Lo cinched the game early, scoring three runs off Doyle in the first, and three more in the third. Final tally was notched in the final segment.

Nick's Fender Benders surprised everyone by holding Wheeling to a 1-1 tie up to the sixth inning. The Wheeling boys then bunted the Nick team to death, winning 4 to 1.

Russell of Klehms team had a little trouble with the Walther League boys, but won, 6 to 3. Art Luerrsen was called in to pitch for the Klehms when Russell got into trouble with the score 4 to 3, bases loaded and two down. Art struck out the next man, and from then on it was smooth sailing.

Results

Rose Lo 7, Mayfair Foods 3.
Wheeling 4, Nick's Fender Benders 1.
Klehms 6, Walther League 3.

Coming games

July 5 Wheeling vs Arlington Legion.
July 7 Walther League vs Nick's Fender Benders.

New Recipes Make Possible Non-Allergy Food Dishes

Food allergies in children cause endless trouble but thanks to recent experiments it is now possible to prepare tasty, nourishing foods which go a long way toward solving this troublesome problem.

While children or adults may be allergic to any of countless foods or other substances, science has established the fact that milk, wheat and eggs cause the most trouble.

Exhaustive tests made by the Good Housekeeping Institute show that tasty, nourishing food can be prepared for children without the use of milk, wheat or eggs. Recipes for the preparation of these foods are published in the January issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

It is said that one person in ten manifests an allergy of some kind at some time. The major reactions are eczema, giant hives, skin swellings and other manifestations, hay fever, asthma, nose secretions, gastrointestinal symptoms.

Signs of allergies in infants vary greatly. The baby may be uncomfortable and cry a lot; or vomit, have frequent thin stools, or become constipated; or be restless, irritable and have considerable gas and not sleep well or have a skin rash.

While wheat, eggs and milk are the chief food causes of allergies, many other foods such as fish, shellfish, fish liver oil, meats, chocolates, nuts and oils may also cause allergies.

Of course, the child won't be eating all of these. Keep notes on the child's diet. Then, if he shows symptoms of an allergy, you can list suspected foods. These will be helpful to a doctor when he makes out a diet.

Questions on GI bill

Question: Is the widow of a World War I veteran, whose husband passed away without a service-connected disability, entitled to a pension?

Answer: Yes, under the following conditions: If she has no children and her income does not exceed $1,000 per year; if there are children under 18 years of age and her income is not over $2,500 per year; if there are children over 18 years of age who are either mentally or physically incapacitated.

Money received from an insurance company is classified as income, and if that, added to regular income, makes it exceed the amounts specified above, would prevent one from obtaining the pension. However, money received from government insurance is not classified as income, and will not, if added to regular income, increase the amount and prevent the obtaining of a pension.

Question: A man I know was inducted into the Navy in 1942. A year later he heard that the Government was giving dependents a $100 grant as an aid until the first allotment check came through. Can he get this special allotment now? He was discharged in 1944.

Answer: No. By amendment to the Selective Service and Training Act, dependents of servicemen were given an outright grant equal to their monthly allotment, provided they applied for it within 15 days after induction. This law was passed in November, 1943, and does not apply to anyone inducted before that date.

Question: Since his discharge a week ago, a veteran has been confined at home with an attack of malaria. He has no medication. Is it possible for him to get treatment from a veteran's hospital without a visit there? He has no car, and is unable to make the trip by other transportation.

Answer: As soon as this veteran's status has been established at a veteran's hospital, he may receive medication for malaria at his home. He should contact his family physician, who may request such medication from the hospital outpatient department. If the physician determines the veteran is a case for emergency hospitalization, he may request ambulance service from a veterans' hospital.

Growing Desert

Our falling water table, dried up springs, man-made dust bowls, and abandoned cattle ranges may be early symptoms of the same things that turned ancient garden spots into deserts.

New Recipes Make Possible Non-Allergy Food Dishes

Food allergies in children cause endless trouble but thanks to recent experiments it is now possible to prepare tasty, nourishing foods which go a long way toward solving this troublesome problem.

While children or adults may be allergic to any of countless foods or other substances, science has established the fact that milk, wheat and eggs cause the most trouble.

Exhaustive tests made by the Good Housekeeping Institute show that tasty, nourishing food can be prepared for children without the use of milk, wheat or eggs. Recipes for the preparation of these foods are published in the January issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

It is said that one person in ten manifests an allergy of some kind at some time. The major reactions are eczema, giant hives, skin swellings and other manifestations, hay fever, asthma, nose secretions, gastrointestinal symptoms.

Signs of allergies in infants vary greatly. The baby may be uncomfortable and cry a lot; or vomit, have frequent thin stools, or become constipated; or be restless, irritable and have considerable gas and not sleep well or have a skin rash.

While wheat, eggs and milk are the chief food causes of allergies, many other foods such as fish, shellfish, fish liver oil, meats, chocolates, nuts and oils may also cause allergies.

Of course, the child won't be eating all of these. Keep notes on the child's diet. Then, if he shows symptoms of an allergy, you can list suspected foods. These will be helpful to a doctor when he makes out a diet.

Questions on GI bill

Question: Is the widow of a World War I veteran, whose husband passed away without a service-connected disability, entitled to a pension?

Answer: Yes, under the following conditions: If she has no children and her income does not exceed $1,000 per year; if there are children under 18 years of age and her income is not over $2,500 per year; if there are children over 18 years of age who are either mentally or physically incapacitated.

Money received from an insurance company is classified as income, and if that, added to regular income, makes it exceed the amounts specified above, would prevent one from obtaining the pension. However, money received from government insurance is not classified as income, and will not, if added to regular income, increase the amount and prevent the obtaining of a pension.

Question: A man I know was inducted into the Navy in 1942. A year later he heard that the Government was giving dependents a $100 grant as an aid until the first allotment check came through. Can he get this special allotment now? He was discharged in 1944.

Answer: No. By amendment to the Selective Service and Training Act, dependents of servicemen were given an outright grant equal to their monthly allotment, provided they applied for it within 15 days after induction. This law was passed in November, 1943, and does not apply to anyone inducted before that date.

Question: Since his discharge a week ago, a veteran has been confined at home with an attack of malaria. He has no medication. Is it possible for him to get treatment from a veteran's hospital without a visit there? He has no car, and is unable to make the trip by other transportation.

Answer: As soon as this veteran's status has been established at a veteran's hospital, he may receive medication for malaria at his home. He should contact his family physician, who may request such medication from the hospital outpatient department. If the physician determines the veteran is a case for emergency hospitalization, he may request ambulance service from a veterans' hospital.

Our falling water table, dried up springs, man-made dust bowls, and abandoned cattle ranges may be early symptoms of the same things that turned ancient garden spots into deserts.

Chemical service kept up to date by constant vigil

The men who wear the crossed retorts of the Chemical Warfare Service have a great role to play in the new Regular Army. With tremendous accomplishments behind them . . . accomplishments which contributed in large part to our recent victories . . . they will move ever forward in the years of peace ahead. Here is a service that must keep up a constant vigil . . . in war and peace. For these men are trained experts in the many phases of war's most dreaded weapons . . . gas, flame, smoke and the possibility of bacteriological warfare. These are the men who perfected the flame-thrower. These are the men who analyzed the possibilities of hostile gases and set up counter-measures.

They developed the finest gas mask in the world and supervised the impregnation of clothing. They invented the ointments and protections against burns and blisters. If the enemy had ever used gas, the Chemical Warfare Service would have been ready for it and been capable of combating it.

You who are about to enlist in the Chemical Warfare Service are joining a group of men unequalled anywhere in experience and training. You will study many things which will help you in civilian life when you leave the army. The control and isolation of raging chemical fires of tremendous heat and intensity . . . the use of sprays and spraying equipment . . . the skill required in handling pyrotechnics of all types . . . flares and combustibles.

Wear and Tear

To determine the difference in the cost of operating an automobile at 25 miles an hour and 65 miles an hour, two identical cars were driven at these speeds over the same course of 1,000 miles, with the result that the fast car consumed 60 per cent more gasoline, 800 per cent more oil and caused 700 per cent more wear on the tires.

Colorado

From Colorado comes word of Herman Koelper of Arlington Heights.

"As you know I had been taking my army air corps basic down at SAAAC Field, San Antonia, Texas. I finished my basic down at SAAAC May 6 and laid around until May 31st when I left for Lowry Field where I am now stationed to take my schooling as a "Clerk Typist." I am scheduled to start school the 1st or 2nd week in July.

"Denver is the finest town I've seen so far. They have some kind of entertainment for us either on the field or in town every night of the week. The people are very friendly and the USO's are really swell.

"I now have a student pass, which entitles me to leave the field on all off duty hours. Well, I had better sign off for now. Hoping all my friends who read this will drop me a line."

His address is Pvt. Herman Koelper, 46073530, Squadron U., Lowry Field, Denver, Colo.
